LINCOLN MOTHER SENT TO JAIL

CALLS COURT WITNESS LIAR

Mrs. George French, 545 South Eleventh street, was fined $15 and sentenced to the county jail for contempt of court by District Judge Morning Friday afternoon. The trouble arose when Mrs. French was haled into court on the complaint of a neighbor that she whipped her baby inhumanely.

When asked by the judge what she had to say for herself, Mrs. French stood up and, assuming a dramatic air, said: "All I have to say is that woman is a damn liar."

The judge then fined her $10 for contempt of court. He then asked her is she had anything further to say. She said, "Yes." The judge asked her what it was and she said "I won't say anything." He then increased her fine to $15.

After this her attitude became so belligerent that the judge ordered her confined in the county jail. The baby, who appeared to be about eighteen months old, with another minor child of Mrs. French, is being held by the juvenile officers pending an order for their removal to the detention home.

MASKED MEN IN HANDS OF JURY

LUMBERTON, N. Y. July 20.—Trial of three men, one a former sheriff charged with being members of a masked mob which flogged two women last April, is expected to reach the jury late today.

The courtroom was crowded today as the final testimony was presented and attorneys prepared to present their arguments.

The accused men—Mike Lawson, John Hedgeseth and Juilus Brogan, have all testified, denying the charges.

Lawson said the testimony of Hattie Purvis, one of the victims of the alleged flogging, was a "frame up." He said Hattie was bitter against him because he had warned her against certain types of visitors at her home and protested against her conduct.

Mrs. John Hedgeseth said her husband was home all night, the night of the whipping.

EVA TANGUAY TO HOLLYWOOD

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 20.—Eva Tanguay, the Jess Willard of vaudeville, entered a Hollywood beauty hospital today to have her face revamped.

The cyclonic Eva, proud of her ability to defeat old age, will be given a two weeks treatment to remove the wrinkles from her face.

"When I come out I hope to give the debuntantes and ingenues a new spurt for histrionic honors," asserted the fighting Eva, who still gets loud applause from vaudeville audiences when she paces up and down the stages swiging her fists and yelling: "I don't care."

Eva is not the first popular star to resort to a Hollywood beauty doctor to exchange an old face for a new one.. Alla Nazimova and Raymond Hitchcock were recently reported to have been laid up here for facial repairs.

LINCOLN WINS RATE VICTORY

TRAFFIC BUREAU OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE GETS WORD.

Battle With Railroad Administration Results in Lower Rates for Transportation of Slack Coal From Wyoming.

The chamber of commerce traffic bureau received telegrahpic advice from Washington Friday morning of the filing by the interstate commerce commission examiner of proposed report in a case prosecuted for the Nebraska Material company, owners and operators of the Doniphan Brick Works, finding rate on slack coal from Rock Springs, Wyo. to Doniphan Neb., of $3.70 to be unreasonable to the extent that it exceeded $3.30 per net ton, and awarding reparation amounting to approximately $200.

This case was heard in Lincoln in January and was vigorously opposed by the law department of the United States railroad administration as the shipments involved moved during the time of federal control.

"The traffic bureau is meeting with marked success in the prosecution of cases of this kind," Mr. Whitten says. "It has recently secured adjustment of a large number of claims on the commission's informal docket and by vountary action of the carriers in other cases."

TRAIL OF AIRMAN THRU THE STATE

Passed Over Wymore Thursday Four Hours Ahead of Train it Started With at St. Joe.

WYMORE, Neb., July 20.—Lieutenant Russell Maughan passed over Wymore at 12:42 Thursday on his non-stop trans-continental flight. In this age and stage of civilization an aeroplane is no longer a thrilling event nor does it excite more than a casual interest but yesterday when the noise of a plane was heard, it was remarked that the plane was flying unusually low, for the noise of the motor was intense, seemingly twice as loud as that of a plane at an average flying height.

Altho the noise of a low-flying plane was heard, no such plane could be seen—not even by the person who always leans against a building or telephone pole and turns his face up to the heavens. But about a minute after the plane was first heard a tiny speack was seen in the southeast. The plane was flying at such height that it seemed almost formless and so great was its speed that it was not more than two minutes from the time it was discernible in the east until it had passed from view in the west.

Then the watchers realized that it was no ordinary plane they had seen for only a plane with an exceptionally powerful engine could be flying at such a speed and the roar of it's exhaust attested that its speed was not imagination but an actual fact. It's height was variously estimated from 5,000 to 8,000 feet.

Telegraphic reports from St Joseph indicated that the plane passed over tha teity at 12 04, exactly that time when Burlington thru passenger train No. 17 is due out of the St. Francis Street Station. The train had a one hundred and twenty mile run with several stops ahead of it and did not reach Wymore until 4 20 but the plane with its slightly shorter "bee lin" and no stops to make arrived in thirty-eight minutes, not quite four hours ahead of the rtain. The plane reached Helvey at 12:55 and Strang at 1 o'clock.

Knox, Scottsbluff and Sarpy have reported but failed to take into account increases or decreases in land values ordered by the state board last year.

WOMEN STAND FOR EQUALITY

DEMAND MORAL AND LEGAL STATUS OF MEN.

Woman's Party Meeting in New York Village Wants Equality Written Into the Federal Constitnion.

SENECA Falls, N. Y., July 20.—Absolute equality of the sexes was demanded by 1,200 delegates to the National Woman's party convention which opened here today.

Seventy-five years ago, the first woman's rights meeting was held here—and since that time women have been enfranchised and no state has failed to modify its laws in their behalf.

But the keynote of speeches, arguments, conferences and resolution which swung under way this morning is a demand for adoption of state and national legislation to create absolute equality of the sexes, legally and morally.

Standing on the scene of the first battle for equal suffrage, delegates pointed out that women are still subordinate before the law in governmental and educational opportunities, and in professions and church work and industry.

Seneca Falls ,an obscure little village in central New York, is filled with women.

The one hotel is housing them two in a bed and two beds in a room. The villagers have thrown their homes open to the women—all but the man who owns the building where the first women's meeting was held seventy-five years ago.

He refuses to let them assemble in his building and has taken down the tablet which marks the building as the scene of the first fight for equal suffrage. He says the building is not safe for a "big crowd and that the tablet interferes with sale of the property."

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, president of the women's organization, will lead the fight for an amendment to the federal constitution for equality of sexes.

The amendment which the women will ask congress to enact reads: "Resolved, that men and women shall have equal rights in the United States and all places within its jurisdiction."

Dissension developed over the resolution. Many women considered it too mildly worded.

PANCHO VILLA SHOT TO DEATH

EL PASO, Tex., July 20. — City police and military headquarters at Chilhuahua City confirmed the death of Pancho Villa by telephone today.

An unconfirmed report says general fighting is in progress around Villa's ranch.

Great excitement prevails in Parral, according to reports to the government. The streets are thronged with excited citizens. The authorities have taken immediate steps to round up the assassins.

A late version of the attack declares that three others in Villa's party, in addition to the former revolutionary leader and his secretary were killed.

This account differs from the first report also, in declarin g that Villa and his entire party were ambushed. It does not charge Villa's own men with responsibility for his death.

El Mundo, a local paper, says the report of Villa's assassination is officially confirmed. Colonel Miguel Miguel Torillo, chief of Villa's staff, and the former revolutionary leader's secretary, is also reported to have been shot and killed.

News of the reported slaying of Villa created a tremendous sensation in Mexico City.

The latest details received stated that the shooting took place early this morning. Villa and his secretary, Colonel Torillo, were said to have been enroute to Parral from Villa's ranch. They were accompanied by Villa's usual escort. Members of the escorting party suddenly turned and began firing upon their chief. Villa fell shot thru the body with several bullets.

Francisco—commonly known as Pancho—Villa thruout Mexico was still regarded as one of the big men of the republic, despite his apparent retirement, and was expected to take a prominent part in the next presidential campaign. One of his former geenrals—Roual Madero—has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the presidency.

It was not known here that Villa had had any trouble with the men at his ranch, which might have led up to the assassination.

INDICT ANTI-SALOON HEAD

MAUGHAN MAY TRY IT AGAIN

Eager to Fly Across Continent Again This Summer.

GOVERNMENT NOT OBJECTING

Rapidly Shortening Daylight Hours an Obstacle.

Maughan Must Have a New Engine Also, But Head of Air Service Believes He Will Succeed.

"Old Sol" still remains the only one able to span the American continent between dawn and darkness.

Lieutenant Maughan, U. S. A., covered 1,980 miles, between Mineola, N. Y., and Green River, Wyo., setting records for the longest distance ever flown by one man and the longest time up before landing at Rock Springs yesterday.

The man was better than the machine. The Curtiss bullet flown by Maughan sprang an oil leak and couldn't finish its task, while the weary pilot was good for the last 600 miles that would have brought him to the Pacific coast while daylight still remained.

"I'll get it on the third try if my chiefs will authorize another one," Lieutenant Maughan said determinedly.

DAYTON, O., July 20.—Lieut. Russell L. Maughan, who streaked across the country to within a few hundred miles of his goal in a second attempt to span the continent between dawn and darkness, probably will get another chance at the achievement this summer, Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army air service, said here today.

Patrick issued orders for Maughan to bring the Curtiss plane back to McCook field from Rock Springs, Wyo., within the next few days. A third attempt, he said, depends largely on the weather.

"The days are growing shorter but I have hopes Maughan will be able to try again this year," said Patrick. "This matter, however, will not be decided definitely until Maughan returns from the west.

"Firmly believe the plucy little pilot's next attempt will be successful. His trip yesterday was wonderful and altho it ended in a forced landing it proved the endurance of man and machine."

Patrick is here enroute to St. Louis.

WASHINGTON, July 20. — Altho army air services headquarters announced this morning that Major General Patrick, chief of the air service, had officially called off the dawn to dark flight attempt of Lieutenant Maughan for the rest of this year, it was indicated later that the gallant flyer might be given another try.

Secretary of War Weeks stated he saw no objection to Maughan having another try and that he would confer with General Patrick on this point.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., July 20.—"I'll have a third try and make it if they'll let me."

Lieut. Russell L. Maughan, army flier, whose second gallant try at spanning the American continent between dawn and darkness ended in heart-breaking failure here late yesterday, when the airman was within a few hours of his goal, awaited orders from Washington today.

Grimly surveying the little plane which had sprung a mechanical defect that alone prevented his triumph, Lieutenant Maughan declared emphatically he wanted to try the flight again. It was his duty, he said.

Meanwhile, he wants also to be permitted to start again for the coast, at the hour at which he landed, 5:08 p. m. mountain time, and prove it possible for a plane to be flown from New York to San Francisco between the hours of dawn and dark.

The end of Maughan's second attempt at an all-day transcontinental flight came in somewhat the same manner as that of his first, altho he had covered twice the distance. It was thru a fault of the engine which the most skilled mechanics had not foreseen and could not repair for hours.

A tiny stream of oil, spurting from an aperture in a pipe in the speeding plane's engine, caused suffocating fumes to fly into the face of the pilot as he held his Curtiss bullet on its westward course. For a time he fought off the consequent nausea, taking the air from Cheyenne, Wyo., his third stopping place on the flight from Mitchell field, New York, in a sickened condition. At the border between Wyoming and Utah he could stand no more and the spirit that held Maughan's eyes on the western horizon, where the Rockies soon were to loom, could not overcome the handicap.

Exactly fifteen hours had elapsed from the time Lieutenant Maughan took off at Mitchell field until he landed here. He flew from the Long Island airdrome at 4:08 o'clock eastern standard time yesterday morning, heading for Dayton, O. his first stop. He was nearly an hour behind his schedule on the first leg of his trip caused by fog in the east.

His next stop was St. Joseph, Mo., where expert mechanics again worked

YOUNG GIRLS LED ASTRAY

THEIR STORY CAUSES ARREST OF AGED FARMER.

Joe White of Fairfield Arrested for Relations With Eva and Flora Elmore, Fifteen and Twelve.

The state child welfare department, represented by Mrs. Morrow, has investigated circumstances which led to the arrest of Joe White, aged sixty, on the charge of unlawful relations with two girls, Eva and Flora Elmore, aged twelve and fifteen years. The Elmore and White families live on farms near Fairfield. The two girls have been sent to the state industrial school at Geneva, but may later be paroled.

According to the story of the girls, their mother, Kate Elmore; giving as an excuse the lack of necessary bedding to keep them warm, sent them to stay unprotected at the home of a neighbor, an old man living alone. This first occurred sometime in January and in a community where an appeal for aid would have met with quick response.

Mrs. Clayton, head of the state child welfare bureau, said one of the girls last week happened to mention to a woman at whose home they were working that they dreaded to go home, and when questioned revealed their story. The authorities were notified an appeal made to the state bureau of child welfare, and with the aid of a representative of that office, a general cleanup was effected.

Nine children have been living at the Elmore home under bad conditions, according to the state bureau. Six of the children have been removed from the home surroundings and placed where they will receive good training, and some provision will be made for others. There were fourteen children in the family.

Among the other things accomplished during the past month, the state child welfare bureau has been instrumental in having six children sent where they could receive necessary medical attention and in having eight children placed in better environment, besides instigating improvements in homes where children were living in filth and neglect.

SUES ON A STOCK DEAL

Chris Boslau Alleges He Paid Bankers Fire $10,000 for 400 Shares of Stock.

Chris Boslau filed suit for $10,000 against the Bankers Fire Insurance company in the district court Friday morning. In his petition he alleges that E. J. Edwell came to his farm and represented himself to be an agent of the company. He said that the par value of the stock was $25 a share and in this three visits he succeeded in selling to Mr. Boslau a total of 400 shares of stock in the Bankers Fire Insurance company and received $10,000 in payment for it.

Mr Boslau later discovered that the par value of the stock was really but $10 and that it had been misrepresented to him. He offered to sell the stock back for the amount he paid for it but was refused, so he filed suit to recover the amount of money he alleges that he was swindled out of

REPAIR COST TO BE SMALL

BOYD COUNTY ROAD CAN BE FIXED FOR $1,500.

Contractor Ha sEstimate From Department of Public Works Engineers and Will Make Good All Damage.

Messers Shirley and Gunther of the firm of Peterson, Shirley and Gunther, road contractors were at the state house Friday. Mr. Shirley was asked about the Boyd county road which Governor Bryan says was paid for tho uncompleted and practically ruined by rains, now impassible and must be almost rebuilt at a cost about equal to the original estimated cost, $70,000.

"There is nothing much to say," said Mr. Shirley, "except that our firm will make good the damage caused by rain. It was simply a case of neglect.

"What will be the cost of putting the road in good condition?"

"The estimate is $1500," said Mr. Shirley.

"Who made the estimate?"

"Engineers of the department of public works," replied Mr. Shirley.

Mr. Shirley said he did not care to say who was responsible for the neglect which has resulted in damage to the grading.

State Auditor Marsh announced Friday that he believed arrangements can be made for payment of road contractors who have claims for work performed amounting to $420,000. Mr. Marsh is of the opinion they should not be paid out of the new appropriation yet they have performed the work and the state has the roads. He has asked Attorney General Stillman ofr an opinion.

Governor Bryan and the finance department of which he is the head have not approved the road contractors claims on the ground that there is no money in the appropriation made by the legislature two years ago, tho the code law makes it the duty of the governor and finance department to audit and pass upon all claims from departments under the control of the governor. This statute is said not to prevent the state auditor from auditing and adjusting the claims as the constitution makes it his duty to act. The failure of lesser auditing officials to act is said not to relieve the auditor of auditing claims.

MAY SETTLE OUT OF COURT

Friends of Aged Farmer, Sued by Daughters for Back Pay, Offer to Help Him.

KANSAS CITY, July 20.—Efforts were reported under way today to settle out of court the suit brought by two daughters of Frederick Leiser, eighty-two, Corder, Mo., farmer, for $31,900 "back pay" for work on the farm.

The father, living alone in Kansas City, has received word from friends of the family at Corder, where he lived for fifty-four years, offering their assistance in settling the family dispute.

The daughters, Edna, thirty-six, and Lena, fifty-four, brought suit when they learned their father had left the bulk of his property to two other children. They claim he promised to leave it to them, if they would remain on the farm and help work it.

FARMERS ARE NOT BANKRUPT

JUST ABOUT EIGHTH OF THEM DUE TO LOSE FARMS.

Head of Federal Joint Stock Land Bank Says Mistaken Impression Is Given by Talk of Financial State.

The impression given out by the comments on the agricultural situation that the Nebraska farmer is "broke" is a mistaken one, according to W. E. Barkley, head of the federal joint stock land bank of Lincoln. Mr. Barkley says that, on the contrary, farm owners rank high in the list of the solvent.

"About 12 1-2 per cent of the farmers of the state are broke," said Mr. Barkley. "Another 12 1-2 per cent are so close to the border line of bankruptcy that they are going to have close shaves. The remainder of them are solvent and will remain so.

"When I say that an eighth of them are broke, I mean that that number will lose their farms. These figures are as reasonably accurate as could be possibly secured, and represent the experience of our bank. The second group that is so close to the border is very likely to be saved. Surely no business where so few failures are to be recorded cannot be said to be bankrupt or close to it."

Mr Barkley's opinion is that of a number of other bankers. Some of these say that in some sections a sort of moratorium has been declared between mortgagee and mortgagor where the money loaner has confidence in the land owner and faith in

BANK WON'T MAKE LOANS

FEDERAL LAND INSTITUTION IS SHARPLY CRITICISED.

Refuses to Help Land Owners Under Government Ditch in Counties in the North Platte Valley.

Indignation exists in the North Platte valley because of a recent announcement by the federal land bank that it would not make any loans upon land under the reclamation project in Scottsbluff county. Ward K. Newcomb, the secretary, in a recent letter to Former Representative George C. Porter of Morrill, protesting against such a policy, says that it is true that the bank had discontinued making loans in that area.

Mr. Newcomb says that about a year ago the bank began to accept these loans, but that it has since developed "that the water users are not accustomed to meeting their payments promptly, although we had been assured in the beginning that no such accumulations would be permitted." He adds that the loans have been discontinued in that area pending clearance of this item and that he doubts very much if the bank will again open without satisfactory assurance that the condition will not be again permitted.

This has caused a lot of sharp criticism. This is based on the fact that he has turned down an entire community regardless of the merits of any of the claims because some of the loan paymentshave not been promptly met. Mr. Porter in a letter to the Journal says that "The people in this community ned this money very much. They need it at low rates of interest ond long time payments. The country is new and has had serious setbacks. The hardships of the pioneer are very real to us. In my judgement such a construction of the Federal Land Bank law is a damnable outrage, which should be aired sufficiently, if possible to bring about a reversal of policy, if

HAVE NUMBER ON ONE YEGG

MEMBER OF BANDIT TRIO HAS TRAIL THAT IS KNOWN.

Officers Have Lines Out That May Lead to Capture of Those Who Attempted to Loot Beaver Crossing Bank.

One of three bank bandits who made an unsuccessful raid on the Beaver Crossing state bank Thursday afternoon, is known. There is no guesswork about it. The statement is official and positive. Officers are not ready to tell what they know or why they know it. State Sheriff Tom Carroll announced at noon Friday that there is nothing new. This announcement, however, does not fit in the unusual activities on the part of state officials and local officials in several "hot" communities.

Deputy states sheriffs in company with Officers Heller and Fraci of the Omaha police department, made a hurried trip from Lincoln at noon. Their destination was Greenwood. A Ford car was deserted near there Wednesday night and an Essex touring car, believed to have been used by the bandits, stolen from the garage of H. B. Schroeder, farmer living 3 1-2 miles southeast of Greenwood. A man appeared on the scene Friday morning to claim the Ford. He was detained at the request of the state sheriff until the official party arrived.

The coming to Lincoln of Omaha officers, the apparent disinclination to give weight to rumors from various sections and the general attitude about headquarters indicates that some important lead is being followed. The several posses that were out of Lincoln late Thursday had returned. This gave further indication that a dragnet may be landed soon and that possibly it will not be empty. There were, however, some parties out from other points Friday. These were headed by Sheriff Jerry Dailey of Wahoo, Sheriff Condit of Fremont and Sheriff Quinton of Cass.

A farmer living near McCool Junction reported to headquarters that at 2:45 p. m. Thursday, about 45 minutes after the attempted robbery, three men in an Essex were seen racing south toward Fairmont. Shortly after 3 o'clock men answering the description were seen racing east from Dorchester. Members of a posse southeast of Crete believe they missed the bandits by a narrow margin. They saw fresh tracks indicating that a car going at at errific clip had made a turn and in so doing had skidded dangerously. They followed the tracks toward Syracuse and reached the conclusion that the bandits were attempting to strike the highway that would take them to Omaha over a route not entering Lincoln.

It is believed probable that the bandits were out of Omaha and that they were attempting to reach cover in the city. It is considered likely that they have succeeded in finding a temporary cover.

MR. VOGEL IS DETERMINED

Prohibiton Officer Who at One Time Was State Agent, Pulls a So-Called Rock.

In Omaha they are laughing at the arrest of two state food inspectors by Prohibition Officer Claude Vogel and a field assistant. The story is of interest here because of the fact that Mr. Vogel was at one time connected with the state sheriff's office.

Vogel and his companion were down in "Little Italy" waiting for big game. The food inspectors drove along with some pop for testing purposes.

"Liquor it is," said Vogel.

"Liquor it ain't," said the inspectors.

AIRMAN SUES FOR BIG SUM

CHAMBERS SEEKS $50,000 FOR INJURIES SUSTAINED.

Bombs Carried in His Plane at a Picnic Demonstration Exploded and Aviator Was Made Cripple for Life.

Encil Chambers, an aviator, filed suit for $50,000 against the Southern Lancaster County Old Settlers association and Ray Judah, in the district court Friday morning, for damages he received when some bombs which he had taken up in his plane during an exhibition flight at a picnic August 12, 1922, exploded, throwing him out of his seat to the top of the plane in a badly mangled condition.

Mr. Chambers alleges that according to the terms of the contract he was to furnish a double parachute drop and a stunt flight but nothing whatever was said about his taking up bombs in the plane. He said that the committee threatened not to fulfill the contract payment if he did not take up the bombs and explode them as they wished and that under this duress he loaded his plane with twenty-four bombs and took them up to a great height to explode them.

He further states that when he attempted to explode one of the bombs that it exploded instanter setting off fourteen other bombs at the same time and with such force as to throw him out of his seat on to the top of the plane in a badly burned and mangled condition.

As a result of this accident he was forced to have four of his fingers amputated and an operation performed on his thigh, hip and the calf of his leg. He further states that he had to pay a hospital bill of $500 in addition to being crippled for life. As compensation for these many and great injuries he asks that the defendants pay him the sum of $50,000 in addition to the costs of the suit.

NOT A TRACE OF ROBBERS

Got Away From Beaver Crossing But No One Knows Where They Went.

BEAVER CROSSING, Neb., July 20—So far as is known heer not a trace of the men who tried to hold up the bank in this place Thursday has been found. No one got the number of the Essex car used, but observers report that the car with three men in it circled around the block in which the bank is located three times. The two men got out of the car, leaving the third man at the wheel with the car running. The two men went into the bank.

Miss Helen Ross says the men got nothing from the bank. She was not certain whether the men were frightened at her screaming or had something else to cause alarm. They pushed her into the back room and while one of the men still had hold of her arm she began to scream. The men quickly released her and ran out of the building. She followed them out, but gained the corner of the corner of the street only in time to see the car disappearing down the road.

DECREASE IN SECOND TERM

Up to date the registration for the second term of the University of Nebraska summer session had reached a total of 886. This number is expected to be practically 900 when the last enrollments are in. When duplicate names are eliminated, it is expected that the registration for the two terms will be about 2,500, or the same as a year ago. The registration for the second term this summer is more than two hundred less than for the second term in 1922, but this decrease is offset by the greater number enrolled during the first term in 1923.

ANDERSON FACES THREE CHARGES

REFUSED TO GIVE ACCOUNTING

Twenty-five Thousand Dollars Said to Be Disposed Of.

SAYS IT'S A CONSPIRACY

State Head of the Anti-Saloon League Issues Bitter Statements Against the District Atorney.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Willitm H. Anderson, superintendent of the New York state anti-saloon leauge, was indicted today by a grand jury on three counts, two of grand larceny and one of forgery. Anderson, who was in court with former Governor Charles Whitman, his attorney, pleaded not guilty.

The state superintendent, whose case has aroused tremendous controversy in New York state, was held in $5,000 bail. He was given a week in which to demur.

The indictments arose out of charges made by a former employe of the anti-saloon league, charging misappropriation of league funds.

O. Birdsall Phillips, the former employe, charged that Anderson had failed to account for certain moneys, amounting to nearly $25,000 entrusted to his care.

Anderson, who has been state superintendent of the league for many years, charged a conspiracy to ruin him was responsible for the charges. Many ministers and others testified in his behalf. District Attorney Banton stated thruout that the superintendent had refused a satisfactory accounting of the allegedly missing funds.

Invited to waive immunity and appear before the grand jury, Anderson refused.

The state superintendent made a bitter counter-attack upon District Attorney Banton, who prosecuted the charges, and issued numerous statements attempting to discredit the district attorney.

In its report the grand jury recommended that the state legislature immediately begin an investigation into all financial activities of the state anti-saloon league since January 1913.

Assistant District Attorney McCoy told newspaper men that two more indictments charging extortion in connection with the same case would be returned within the next few days.

DENIES RECKLESS DRIVING

E. H. Kouba Is Tried in Police Court as Result of Auto Accident.

E. H. Kouba was tried before Police Judge Chappell Friday morning on charges of reckless driving and failing to give the right of way to the party on the right. The charges were filed against Mr. Kouba by C. L. Thornberry, 1010 North Twenty-second The case grew out of an accident at Twenty-seventh and Holdrege streets at 8 a. m. Thursday when Thornberry's auto was hit by a truck driven by the defendant. The case was continued until Saturday morning. "All things being equal, the man on the right has the right of way," said Judge Chappell. The rear end of Thornberry's auto was struck and a wheel was broken off. Mr. Kouba said that the sun bothered his vision and that he did not see the other auto until upon it. He said that he was not going fast but claimed that the complainant was speeding.

PEOPLE USE MORE GASOLINE

Indicated by Big Increase in Number of Cars Inspected by Department of Agriculture.

Deputy Secretary Grant L. Shuy way of the state department of agriculture finds from his records that his department inspected nearly 1,000 more cars of oil and gasoline in the first twenty-eight weeks of this year, ending July 14, than were inspected by his predecessors in office last year during the same period. He does not attribute this to the efficiency of his inspectors but to an increased use of gasoline by the people of the state. The number of cars inspected by his employes was 8,750.

Farmers are evidently using more commercial feed stuff for livestock The first six months this year the department sold tax for the shipment of 42,423 tons into the state. Last year the total number of tons covered by tax was 22,292. Licenses and certificates of all kinds issued last year during the first six months totaled 7,433. This year the number has reached 7,780.

PIPE BUILDING UNDER WAY

Probably Will Require Upwards of Three Months to Complete Big Sewer Project.

The manufacture of 51 inch reinforced concrete pipe for the 3,900-foot stretch leading to the sewage disposal plant, is under way. Forms and bases were laid Friday. It is estimated that approximately 48 feet of this patented lock-joint pipe will be manufactured per day. It must cure from fourteen to fifteen days before being laid. Theer are twelve forms and thirty-six bases in the ground. These came by special shipment from the factory.

The Martin-Day company bid $12.45 a foot on the job. Of this sum, approximately $7.45 goes to the lock-joint people who make the pipe on the ground. The total cost will be in the neighborhood of $48,500. What salvage value the main now under ground will have, is a problem and will not be known until it is unearthed.

The C. B. & Q. band will furnish music, and ball games betfeen Lincoln and Havelock Shopmen will be played. Other sporting contests will be put on.

CONFERRING OF DEGREES

SUMMER SCHOOL STUDENTS GRADUATED AT WESLEYAN.

Rev. L. R. DeWolf of York Addresses Commencement Audience at Methodist College Friday Morning.

"Before you do much for the world you will need a place of spiritual rest. More need ot find the Rock of Ages beneath their feet," said the Rev. Lotan R. DeWolf of York in addressing the commencement audience at Nebraska Wesleyan Friday morning.

Exercises were held in the First Methodist church at University Place. The chapel was decorated with garden flowers. The academic procession formed in the parlors of the church and marched down the central aisle. It was led by Misses Lois Mercin and Gladys Ruess of the junior class, who wore caps and scarfs of university colors, yellow and brown. Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast and Rev. Mr. DeWolf, Dean McProud, director of the summer school; Rev. F. A. Lindhorst, chaplain of the day, were followed by faculty members. The candidates for degrees marched behind, clad in black caps and gowns. Candidates for teachers' certificates concluded the line.

Seats on the platform were occupied by Chancellor Schreckengast, Dean McProud and Rev. Mr. DeWolf and Rev. Mr. Lindhorst. Mrs. Eudora Esterbrook, professor of organ at Wesleyan, played the Fantasia, by Cours, as a prelude. Invocation was by Rev. Mr. Lindhorst. Dean McProud introduced Dean and Mrs. Parvin Witte, who sang "Miserere," from "Il Trovatore," by Verdi.

Chancellor Cchreckengast introduced Rev. Mr. DeWolf, whose subject was "A Man and His World."

The speaker said in brief:

"There are so few leaders in the world. The average being manifests willingness to follow in the paths others have made. The hour is desperate and the need is great. The world expects much from the men and women who have been trained in a Christian university.

"One has to do vitally with only one age—his own. From former ages he has learned to profit fro mexperience, but neither in the past nor the future is a man vitally interested. You are responsible for your own world and your own age.

"This is a peculiar world. Outstanding facts may be found today to guide us in our work. It is a world of widespread information very inadequately understood. Nobody confesses ignorance. The average person feels he knows everything, but modesty keeps some from telling about it. This smattering of information has resulted in confusion.

"There is impatience in regard to things of the past. Violent hands have been laid on sacred altars. This is not confined to religion and morals. Radicals and conservatives are found among all classes. There is a feeling that the Bible is out of date. The doctrines of the bible are so terribly old and so wonderfully true. Remose is still the same. The kindness and tenderness of God is reaching out to everyone—is old as the sun.

"Every graduate today should endeavor to know his world; to have an understanding of contemporary life and to drink deeply of spiritual rest. Greatness does not always consist in complexities. The foundations for our life should be laid in a divine sovereignty and Fatherhood of the Great Creator and in the Holy Spirit which visits the heart of man.

"Side by side with their own life lies the great spiritual world. This is the great day of psychology. One cannot think of closing the windows of his soul to God who is the great source of light. You are not to worry about the findings of Modern Science. Some discoveries are apt to upset some at the time but the religious life is a thing apart."

Degrees were conferred by Chancellor Schreckengast.

The following students appeared at the mid-summer commencement of Nebraska Wesleyan university Friday morning:

ESCAPES AGAIN

WASHINGTON, D. C.—John R. Early, whose detention as a leper caused a country-wide sensation some years ago, has escaped from confinement for the fourth time and has paid a visit to his old haunts around Washington. Having completed his call here on Monday, July 16, he reported to the District of Columbia health authorities, who ordered him sent back to the national leprosarium in Louisiana. He said he had been living at a downtown hotel. He left the leprosarium three weeks ago, he told the authorities, and since then also had visited Chattanooga, Tenn., Asheville and Tryon, N. C., Chicago and Milwaukee.

KEEP FAITH WITH INDIANS

Philadelphians Preserve Inviolate Tract Given by William Penn to Red Men.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—In the heart of Philadelphia's business district a small plot of ground given by William Penn to the Delaware Indians has been kept inviolate for more than two centuries.

Onas, as William Penn was known to the Indians, gave the ground to the Delawares of Lenni Lenapes as a common council ground, so they could camp on their own land when coming to meet him in council.

Penn promised the land would always be reserved to their use and his promise has been faithfully kept. The Indians have vanished, but should they ever return again William Penn's council grounds awaits them.

There is no deed for the land so far as known that guarantees the title to the Indians. Yet the place has been sacred by the white men. The little spot is in the rear of the Ritz Carlton Hotel, Broad and Walnut streets. Silence broods over the council grounds. It is kept scrupulously clean, no mercantile houses use it for shipping. It is awaiting the return of the redskin.

RATES WILL BE BOOSTED

WESTERN RAILROADS FIGHT REFUNDS TO SHIPPERS.

Say Interstate Commerce Commission Will Deplete Their Revenues and Force Higher Rates.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—A general increase in freight rates on western railroads is considered probable if the interstate commerce commission refuses to reverse its recent decision in the western lumber rate case.

In a petition filed with the commission by western carriers seeking reargument of the case, the roads contend that the decision, which sets new maximum rates and awards shippers refunds on the differences between rates paid in the last five years and the new rates, establishes a dangerous precedent.

If permitted to stand, the petition declares, the door is opened to all classes of shippers to bring long established rates in dispute and if successful in getting them reduced, to obtain gigantic refunds from the railroad companies on the basis of the lumber rate decision.

Such an assault on their revenues would deplete their finances and require a general advancement of rates, the railroads declared.

MAKING TEST AT COLLEGE

WHEAT FROM MANY COUNTIES IS CALLED FOR.

Bread Making Qualities to Be Shown of Grain Raised in Different Parts of the State.

This fall, in cooperating in the experiments being conducted there in determining the baking qualities of Nebraska wheats, twenty-one county agricultural extension agents will send five or more samples of wheat from their respective counties to the agricultural chemist of the agricultural college, Lincoln. Box Butte, Scottsbluff, Kimball, Keith, Red Willow, Furnas, Buffalo, Hall, Hamilton, Clay, Fillmore, Butler, Saunders, Madison, Dakota, Cuming, Dodge, Washington, Douglas, Seward, Gage and Richardson counties all furnish samples that will be used in the second year's test of Nebraska wheats which were said a year ago to be of more valuable quality to that of many other states. Farmers not in these counties may send in their wheat for a test by writing to Chemist M. J. Blish, agricultural college, Lincoln, for application and information blanks.

The big millers of the north are buying wheat now on the two standards of quantity of protein and of the region from which it came. Their agents have made regional surveys, all over the wheat belt getting samples of wheat from areas no larger than our average Nebraska county. These samples have been tested in the baking laboratories of these mills and a map of the entire country made showing where the different qualities of gluten come from. The strange thing about the value of wheat to the miller, says Mr. Blish, is that two samples of wheat may be similar in every respect, even in quantity of protein or gluten content and in every chemical test that can be applied to them, yet their physical properties may be so different that one will make good bread while the other will be almost worthless. The only real test of the value of the wheat is to take the flour into bread. Uniform methods are used in the experiments run at the college, both in grinding and preparing the flour and in baking the bread. The results obtained last year were published in circular form and sent to all those who cooperated in the work. After several years the agricultural college will publish its conclusions based on enough work to be free of exceptions and conclusive in fact and reasoning.

TRIES FATAL EXPERIMENT

Big Brown Mare Killed After an Exploration of Trestle at Sixteenth and Z.

Curiosity brought death to a big, brown mare. It was not blindness that caused her to experiment on the Missouri Pacific railroad trestle near Sixteenth and "Z" streets for her eyes were perfect. Nor was in necessity since a road skirts around and just below the bridge.

The mare stepped gingerly with care from tie to tie and reached the center without mishap. Then her foot slipped and down she went with a leg dangling down an opening. Superintendent McClain and members of the police department removed some of timber and released the mare but a shoulder had been broken and animal was shot.

GOVERNOR MAY LEAVE STATE

Authorized Report Says He Will Visit His Son at Minneapolis Before Returning Home.

Governor Bryan's secretary, F. C. Radke, was first in rank in the executive office Friday. The governor, accompanied by his wife and daughter, were reported to have started Thursday to Minneapolis to visit the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan, Silas M. Bryan, for a few days. Secretary Radke was not willing to admit that the governor is going out of the state, and said if he did step over the border it would probably be into South Dakota.

If the governor leaves he state Fred G. Johnson of Hastings, lieutenant governor, will be acting governor every moment of the time, even tho the lieutenant governor be not aware of the absence of the governor. Under a policy adopted by the last legislature the acting governor in such cases will be entitled to $23 a day for every day the governor is across the border line of the state, regardless of whether the acting governor knows he is acting governor. The legislature appropirated $1,800 to the former lieutenant governor as pay for acting governor.

When the governor left he made no announcement in regard to his destination nor the duration of his trip except that he would go to the northern part of the state.

Secretary Radke said if the services of the lieutenant governor are needed in the event Governor Bryan leaves the state the lieutenant governor will be notified that his presence in the executive office is desired.

ANOTHER MAD DOG SCARE

Small White Pup Enters a Strange Apartment in Search of a Drink of Water.

A small white dog showing signs of madness, was cleared of the charge after inspection at the humane society' shelter. He was only thirsty—not mad when he entered a second floor apartment at 111 South Fifteenth street. He was not sick for he passed up a drug store directly underneath.

When dog failed to find water, he puffed and he frothed very much as a fat lady would do after great exertion. The occupants of the apartment returned to find this strange guest. The humane society superintendent was notified. People of the apartment were afraid to enter. So the dog awaited refreshment until removed to the shelter where he drank to his fill.

"Dogs won't go mad if given water," said Superintendent McClain.

BAKERS PICNIC CALLED MANY

BIG CROWD AT STATE MEETING HELD AT CRETE.

Program of Talks, a Chicken Dinner and Sports Events Made Up a Pleasing Entertainment Menu.

About 300 bakers, many of whom brought their families along to enjoy the fun, attended the third annual bakers' picnic given by the Crete mills Thursday. This picnic is not an official affair, altho those belonging to the state association of bakers attend, but a party at which the Crete mills is host. The crowd began to arrive at 8 in the morning and stayed until late in the evening, after a 5 o'clock chicken dinner and a series of talks by the assembled bakers. Every bake shop in Lincoln had a representative, many came from Omaha and Hastings and there was a generous sprinkling of bakers from towns as far as 250 miles west as well as from the northeastern section. The program began at 10 a. m. with swimming in the Crete pool, followed by a trip thru the mill. The buffet luncheon, held at the mill, lasted from 11:30 to 1. After a bakers' "get together" session at the mill cars collected at the east door and left together for Vavra's park. A tug of war and ball game occupied the time from 2:30 to 4. From 4 to 5 contests and races were held for fat man, married ladies, and girls, also sack race, pie eating, peanut rolling, allied trades and sack ripping contests.

The fifty yard dash for all men was won by Maloney of Omaha; fifty yard dash for fat men, Bob Teviotdale, Grand Island. In the contest for prizes by the T. F. Naughtin company the following were winners: Fattest baker, Mrs. Throckmorton, Central City; oldest baker, Mrs. Alice Thompson, Hastings; tallest baker, Mrs. Isham, Lincoln; shortest baker, F. H. Crissman, Hooper; girls' pie eating contest, Harriet Johnson, Crete. The tug of war was won by the all state bakers and the baseball game by the Omaha team against the all state team, 9 to 5. Following the chicken dinner, which was held at Horky's park, many of the crowd danced until 11 p. m., those from Lincoln returning to the city about 12 o'clock. At the business session it was decided that the annual business meeting should be held at Grand Island.

Several days before the picnic every baker in the state received a circular with a picture of those at last year's picnic and an invitation to have his face in the picture this year, also the exact program which was to be carried out. Much of the success of the picnic depended upon the efficiency with which it was managed by the Crete Mills, the host. Upon the arrival of the bakers at Crete, each was given a little memorandum book in which a detailed program was printed and inside of which was folded a list of the contests, tickets for the launch ride and a ticket for the chicken dinner.

I.W.W. CALL INVASION OFF

MARCH ON PORT ARTHUR CANCELLED FOR PRESENT.

Wobblies Expecting General Strike of Transport Workers—Port Arthur Police Not Convinced.

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., July 20.—The I. W. W. invasion of Port Arthur is off. Orders for the mobilization of forces in half a dozen states have been cancelled by leaders of the organization. Those en route to Port Arthur have been ordered back to their posts.

Switch in orders has been made because of a general strike call, declared Sidney Terry, I. W. W. organizer, awaiting trial today with three companions on a charge of vagrancy.

Terry said that a general strike of international marine transport workers is to be ordered in protest to the sentence of twenty-seven members at Los Angeles a week ago and a court injunction making membership in the I. W. W. organization punishable by imprisonment.

Late last night a messenger, Terry said, arrived from New Orleans bearing orders from Harry G. Clark of Chicago and John Shuskie of New York.

News of the I. W. W. change in plans is being accepted with reservations by police officials here. Chief of Police W. W. Covington said the next few days should indicate whether the invasion is really called off. "We are not going to be careless."

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan "speed king of the army air service" will not be able to make another attempt at the dawn to dusk cross continental flight until next summer, Major W. H. Frank, executive officer to Major General Patrick, chief of the air service said today.

Frank pointed out that by the time Maughan's little high speed plane had been put in shape and all other arrangements had been completed for another flight, the length of daylight would have become too short for the lieutenant to make another attempt at the flight with a fair chance of succeeding.

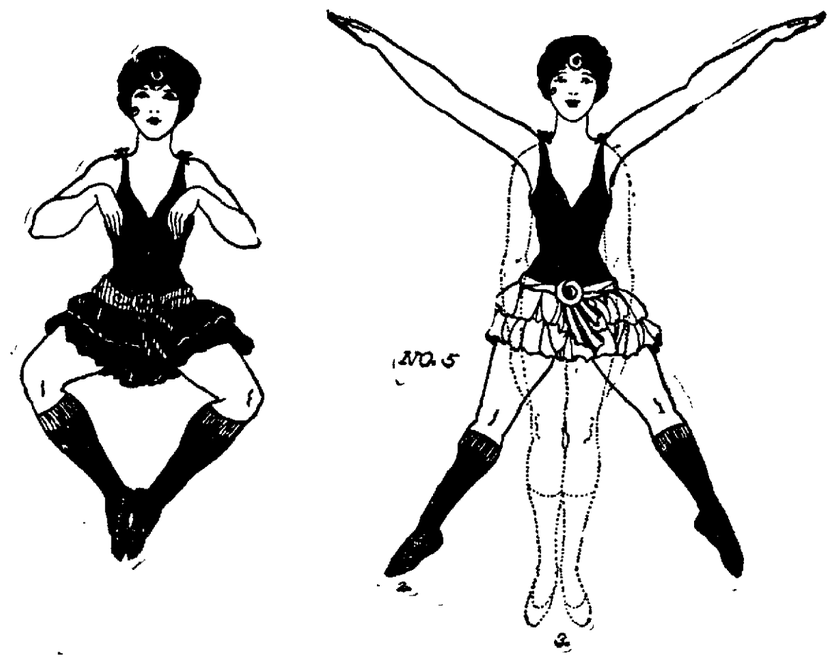

Already about three quarters of an hour in daylight has been lost since the first attempt," Frank said. "By the time every thing would be ready for a third try another hour would be lost and Maughan would be under the handicap of about two hours less daylight."

It was pointed out by Major Frank that a new engine would have to be installed in Maughan's plane and a number of other arrangements made, taking a good deal of time.

No. 5—The Back Stroke.

After you have learned to float and scull fairly well and are getting over your fear of trusting yourself to the water, you will find it easy to learn the backstroke. There are two kinds of backstrokes, scientific and plain. We will use the plain, as it is easier. This stroke is used for resting when tired from the more strenuous strokes, and also used in some forms of life saving, where the leg stroke alone is used for swimming and the arms for handling the patient.

Learn the leg movement first. It is well to practice this first on the floor at home. While lying on your back draw your legs up, feet together and knees as far apart as possible. Then extend them, the legs straight and far apart, forming a "Y." Then snap the legs together firmly, taking care to keep the knees stiff. Let the legs remain in this position a second before repeating the exercise. The count for this explains itself—up, out, together.

Then comes the arm movement. "Up" means to draw your arms up, with the hands at the pit of the arms and elbows sticking out from the body slightly. On "out" extend the arms upward and outward (see diagram), with the elbows stiff and palms toward your feet, fingers closed. On "together" pull your arms firmly to your sides, with elbows stiff, with a motion like the sweep of an oar. Repeat.

Now place the arm and leg movements together. "Up," draw both arms and legs. Extend them on "out" and snap them firmly but smoothly into place, arms at sides and legs together on "together." This last part of the stroke is where you should use the force. Do not make rapid motions. Use slow but forceful strokes, permitting yourself to glide thru the water as far as possible each time before beginning the next stroke. Learn to cross the pool in as few strokes as possible. After a while you will be able to glide ten or twelve feet on a stroke.

VANDERLIP SAYS A NEW PARTY POSSIBLE

Will Go Thru If Right Leader Found—Banker Sees Danger in Government Buying Wheat Surplus.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Frank A. Vanderlip, former head of the National City bank, declared here today that a third political party in 1924 is possible if the right man appears to lead it. The banker would not name such a man. Vanderlip asserted that altho the people are "undeniably restless" the business situation of the country is wholesome. He blamed the restlessness on lack of practical inspired leadership in Washington.

The farmer, he asserted, should be able to get a fair price for his products, but added that government purchase of surplus wheat is dangerous economics.

Vanderlip predicted that the economic condition will work out so the farmer will "get his share" inasmuch as the nation as a whole is stable and prosperous.

The capitalist with his family are on a vacation tour across the country and at the same time Mrs. Vanderlip, with her husband's assistance, is promoting the Bok peace prize.

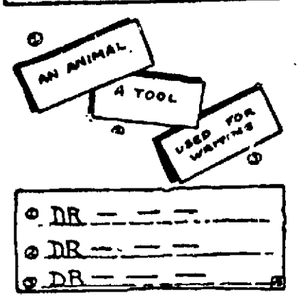

WORK FOR UNEMPLOYED.

BERLIN, July 20.—Berlin is putting her unemployed to work that the employed may play. Seventeen new public play and sport grounds are to be built, giving 400 unemployed a total of 57,000 days employment. Other cities and sections near here are engaging unemployed in improving rivers and harbors, remodeling and rebuilding public buildings and public property.

TRAINED CARP.

BATH, England, July 20.—Trained carp are a feature at the local baths. They come to the surface at the keeper's call, permit themselves to be lifted from the water, and at dinnertime answer a bell which their leader —fifteen years old—rings by pulling a spring.

The Daily Puzzlette

By adding the same two consonants to the words described above you will get (1) a word meaning to cover with hanging cloth, (2) a word meaning to pronounce slowly, (3) a word meaning a beverage.

The answer will be given tomorrow.

Fight on for Democratic Nomination

In the analysis of The Digest's poll of Democratic leaders, there are many side-lights of picturesque interest. One Texas editor, for instance, says whimsically, "Those of us who are of the red-necked class are for McAdoo. Those of us who don't know what we want or how to get it are for Ford. The conservative among us and those who want to go back to the old traditions of the party are for Underwood. Those of us who like our "likker' are for Al. Smith and so on. It is great to be a Democrat." An intensely interesting news-feature this!

BOY DROWNED BY PLAYMATE

FEEBLE MINDED GIRL PUSHES CHILD THRU WHARF.

Children's Whisperings Caused Investigation After Coroner Gave Verdict of Accidental Death by Drowning.

CHELSEA, Mass, July 20 —A queer little girl with big blue-black eyes sits in a room of the probation home here today staring vacantly at the wall while the house folks point her out to visitors as a murderess

She is Elizabeth MacDonald, thirteen years old, and the neighbors say she is just a poor little girl whose mind never has been quite right

She is said to have told police—her big eyes open wide—that she pushed Jimmey MacDonald, four years old down thru a hole in the wharf Monday afternoon. His feet caught in the rotton planking and he died hanging head downward in the water

They say she pushed several other children in the water before but none of them was drowned. The young Macdonald baby, called "Sonny" by his playmates, was no relation to her They were just playing together on the wharf when Betty shoved him in the water down thru the narrow hole.

Her mother is distracted.

She's just a poor little girl whose mind has never been quite right," she said Tears streamed from her eyes and she choked as she talked (Her name is Mrs Louise MacDonald)

'Her daddy died last November They wanted to take Elizabeth away once before but I wouldn't let her go Now I suppose I will lose her. She didn't mean anything wrong She didn't know what she was doing "I've go only two left Mabel and Johnny"

The boy's body was found floating in the water near the wharf Monday A verdict of accidental death was returned by investigators but a new probe was begun when the children of the neighborhood began whispering to their mothers. Elizabeth's detention followed

In childish words she told how she and Sonny with several others, had been throwing stones into the water. She thought it would be fun if Sonny would jump in and make a big splash He wouldn't do it and started to cry and then, police say she admits, she pick d him up

"I pushed his head thru the little hole" she declared 'I was going to push him all the way in but his feet stuck and I couldn t get them loose

'I didn't want him to die But the rest of them started to cry and I got scared I ran away and I was too scared to tell my mother'

Because of her age Elizabeth was got placed formally under arrest, but is being held under guard for arraignment in juvenile court next Thursday

Dr Francis Mahoney, physician who examined Elizabeth, declared she was mentally subnormal She has only the mental capacity of a child of seven, he said

THE LOVE THAT WON

By FAY STEVENSON

Copyright, 1923 (New York Evening World), Press Publishing Company

A NEW DAILY SERIAL STORY THAT ANSWERS THE QUESTION "SHOULD A GIRL PROPOSE?"

The Answer.

Jean selected the most beautiful red rose from the bouquet John Wellington Browne sent her and fondled it tenderly Then she blew a kiss over its petals and wrapped it carefully in tissue paper before she placed it in a glove box to send to Browne who had requested that she send him one of his roses if she decided to marry him

Browne was just the man to wish an original answer to his proposal and there was something very romantic to Jean in this sending him her answer in the form of a rose After she had called a special messenger and given him Browne's address Jean sank wearily into a chair waiting—wondering what the next step would be

One thing was certain—she had at last won the man she loved' Other men had made love to her, tried to win her hand, but she had followed the bent of her own heart and now, after weary road, things were clear She could just begin to trace the steeple of the church which was to make her the wife of the only man she loved!

It was late in the afternoon Jean was alone in her apartment. She wore a white pleated silk skirt and overblouse of white Canton crepe The only touch of color about her was a rose in her belt

She had almost fallen asleep when the doorbell awoke her from her reveries At first she thought the bell was a part of her dream for in her few moments of unconsciousness she thought John Wellington Browne had come to her with her newly received rose—her answer She walked down the hall, opened the door and saw him standing with the very glove box she had dispatched but a half hour ago

"Oh! I thought I was dreaming," she exclaimed

"So you were" laughed John Wellington Browne as he caught her to him and their lips met for the first time "Jean, you sweet, dear girl, you have been dreaming right along, a beautiful dream of love and life, and you and I, and it was only when I told you my little story yesterday that I realized your dream It was only—oh, my dear, it's been right along You've meant so much to me for so long that I don' know when I first began to love you"

'And yet—"

Yes, we almost missed each other because I was afraid of the other men, he interrupted "Every man who has been disappointed in love is afraid of other men but when I saw you had given all the others up, when I began to realize I was the one—" He caught her to him again and kissed her tenderly as he took the rose from her belt and placed it with the one she had sent him

'Jean and John'" he said 'Doesn't that sound romantic' We'll live to make old Darby and Joan ashamed of themselves Jean, dearest it may be hard for some men to fall in love, but whe they do 'fall' they never get over it' These chaps who propose at the second dance are ready for a divorce in a year But now that we've got each other you'll find that you have a lov on your hands for the rest of your life'"

Jean smiled thru a veil of tears The girl who wins at love always does That's a woman's way of being happy There were times when John Wellington Browne the junior partner of the firm where she was employed seemed so reserved, so unsusceptible, to a woman's love and yet, every girl who loves with all her heart and soul can win the man she loves for her husband It may mean giving up temporary beaux and good times, it may mean waiting and then more waiting but Jean smiled radiantly, confidently thru her April shower tears John Wellington Browne was her fiance Hers had been the love that won'

Remarkable Tonic Brings New Strength to Thousands of Weak and Ailing

Discovery of Lyko, the Great General Tonic, Gives Aid of Science to Run-Down People

As you watch the crowd going along the street, how easy it is to see the difference in the people who make it up.

Some are well, strong, vigorous, full of the vim and energy that win in social and business life. Others are weak, emaciated, lacking in all that counts for power and success—mere nobodies in active affairs.

And yet most of these run-down people could quickly become well and strong if they would only help Nature to restore their bodies to a normal condition. What they need is an efficient general tonic and regulator. If they will do what thousands of other people once weak and lacking in energy—now strong and well—have done, they will use Lyko to get on their feet again.

It is simply amazing to read of the wonderful help Lyko has given to people who had become worn out in mind and body, many of them discouraged, hopeless of regaining their health and strength.

Mr. Johnson, a resident of Kansas City, was amazed at the way Lyko built up his run-down constitution. He says, "When I began taking Lyko I was thin and gaunt, weighed only 130 pounds and felt a great lack of 'pep' Now I weigh 147 pounds, am full of energy and never feel tired"

H. Jenkins, of Chicago, is another to whom Lyko has meant renewed strength and vigor. The following is from his letter: "My business keeps me closely confined to the office and at a desk all day long. As a result, my system became all clogged up, I was always tired, rested poorly at night and grew nervous and irritable. I began using Lyko and now I am in fine shape again, feel cheerful, and am able to do much more work without fatigue or nervous strain."

Mitchell Murray, of Missouri, sends a letter which says: "When I began to take Lyko I was so weak I could hardly walk across the room. Now I am able to do a pretty fair day's work, and my neighbors are amazed at the effect."

J. D. Miller of Chicago writes: "We have been using Lyko in our family and find it the best tonic for stomach and bowels we have ever used."

F B Barker of Florida is another who writes in praise of Lyko He says: "My wife's health was all run down and she has greatly improved since taking Lyko."

Lyko is a scientific preparation containing pure medicinal ingredients each of which has a beneficial action on some part of the system. It has a mild but effective laxative action which gets rid of constipation. It also stimulates a lazy stomach to normal action and improves digestion so that the body absorbs the full strength from the food. As many ailments come from a disordered digestive system or from a clogged up condition of the bowels, Lyko helps to remove one of the great causes of discomfort and illness.

Certain ingredients in Lyko have a direct and beneficial action on the kidneys and liver; others give strength to the nervous system and prevent what is known as nervous fatigue and mental exhaustion. Practically every part of the body is helped to return to its full health and strength by Lyko. And a healthy body means physical and mental power, magnetic personality, the appearance that brings admiration and confidence.

If you are frail, weak, suffering from a "breakdown" or if you feel inactive, lacking in energy, unable to compete with active people, if you look and feel old, let Lyko give you new vim and vigor. Do not delay. Begin at once Let Lyko do for you what it has done for so many others.

Lyko is sold by leading druggists. Ask your dealer for it.

Good Night Stories

By Blanche Silver

Illustrated by Neva Harrison

MR. LIFE-PRESERVER'S STORY.

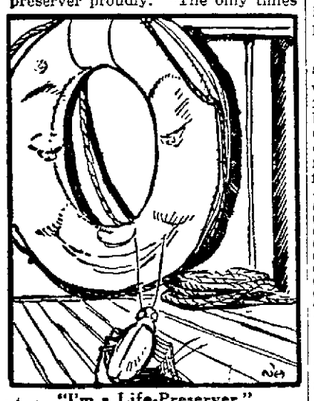

BILLY Cockroach was a funny little cockroach. He made his home in the kitchen of a great big boat that plied through the ocean day after day carrying supplies of all kinds from one country to another.

Most of Billy Cockroach's family had crawled into crates of fruit and were carried on to land. But Billy Cockroach rather enjoyed the rolling and tossing of the boat, so when the old boat scraped against the dock, Billy Cockroach would keep well under cover so as not to be seen.

Goodness, I can't see why you have to be put off!" laughed the old life-preserver from the hook on which he hung. "I never think of being thrown off. Come on, and hide under me, I'll protect you," and the old life-preserver laughed as only a life-preserver can laugh.

"Thank you," replied Billy Cockroach, as the men on board hustled the box, where Billy Cockroach spent most of his time, out the hatchway upon the dock. "They have taken my apartment, so if you don't mind, I'll hide under you until I can find some place to go. I love this old boat and would die if they put me off. I've spent my entire life right here. Have you lived on this boat very long?"

"Goodness, yes!" laughed the life-preserver proudly. "The only times

"I'm a Life-Preserver."

I've ever been off this nail is when I've gone out into the water to save somebody."

"Save somebody!" Billy Cockroach exclaimed. "What do you—"

"Why," interrupted the life-preserver proudly. "I'm a life-preserver made from cork."

"Goodness!" laughed Billy Cockroach. "How in the world did you happen to come here to live? Where did you live before?"

"Why, in beautiful Spain," replied the life-preserver. "I lived on a thirty-foot cork tree. My, but Mother Tree boasted of a stout trunk! I never shall forget. She was just twenty-eight years old when they came and stripped off the layer of bark from which I was fashioned. It was about the middle of the summer, as I remember," he continued, "when the men came and cut around the whole trunk, just above the ground. Then they made another cut just below the branches. Between these two horizontal cuts they made several cuts running up and down, and then they took the bark off in strips. They were so careful that Mother Tree hardly felt it.

"Then they heated and slightly scorched these strips, which made them all flatten out and caused them to be tougher than when they were dry. I don't know where my brothers and sisters went, but the strip that I came from was made into this life-preserver. I was hustled from one place to another until I landed here, and the only times I've been off this hook were when I've been called on to save some one," the life-preserver sighed. "I don't blame you for not wanting to leave this boat, I love it."

"So do I," replied Billy Cockroach.

Just then some one stumbled against the life-preserver, and Billy Cockroach dropped to the floor and scampered away to another hiding place.

TWO LIGHT-TONED LINENS

The Dainty Colors Are Now Regarded as Ideally Smart

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW

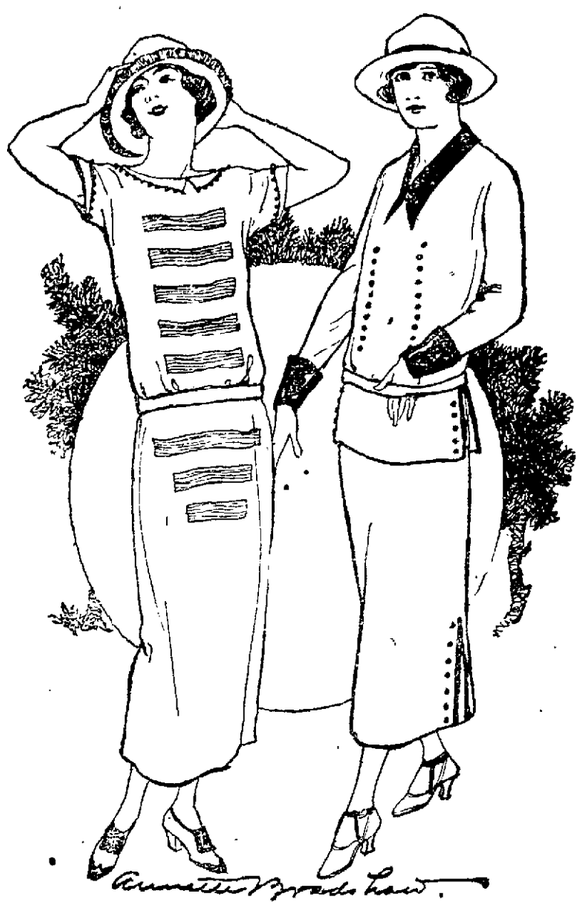

THE linen summer frock is most desirable. Linen is one of the coolest materials to wear, and even when light in tone, linen seems to have a way of wearing a long time without soiling. Occasional pressing will keep a linen summer frock in good condition.

If it happens to be dark, it will wear literally forever without needing to be tubbed. If it is light, like the two models here, it may not be quite as saving, still this is the season of colors and it is the smart thing to indulge your fancy along this line.

The model at the left is of yellow linen with white cotton braid in horizontal bars down the front. Instead of applied collar and cuffs, the linen is simply turned back and held down by tiny white pearl buttons placed very close together.

The other frock is of pimento-colored linen, carrying out the vogue for colors of the yellow, maize and orange tones. This model shows interesting slits at either side of skirt and jacket, and is trimmed with brown bone buttons, brown linen binding and brown linen collar and cuffs.

The straight one-piece frock is such a popular model that it might well be copied in rep or fine serge for Fall. You could use black silk braid at the front, and either dark or tiny white pearl buttons for the collar and sleeves. Rep is the smart material the French are sponsoring for Fall.

YOUR HEALTH

Why Immaculate Hands Point the Way to Health

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DR. COPELAND

A FEW nights ago I addressed the nurses who were being graduated from the training school of a great hospital. I have had this experience so many times that it seemed to me there could be nothing new to see or to think about.

It is interesting always to see the young women in their uniforms. They look so neat and clean, so attractive and capable, that you seem to understand why to-day disease is less fatal than formerly.

What impressed me above everything else the other night was the appearance of the hands of the nurses.

Some of them were not small hands. Not all of them were shapely hands. But they were strong, willing and trained hands.

The work of a nurse is hard work. Her hands fetch and carry, they scrub and clean, they are plunged into hot water and into powerful and corrosive solutions. But they are always tender hands, possessing the healing touch.

Every one of these nurses had clean hands, with clean and well-manicured finger-nails. They were immaculate hands.

The success or failure of a hospital depends on the hands of the nurses. Life or death in an operation may be determined by the hands of the nurse. Cleanliness of the hands in certain respects is more important than the skill of the surgeon.

Certain diseases are hand-conveyed. For instance, influenza may be passed on from person to person, carried by the hands. Other diseases of the nose, throat or lungs may be carried by contaminated hands. It is probable that measles, diphtheria, scarlet fever and other contagious or infectious fevers may be transmitted in this way.

No one should sit down to a meal until the hands have been washed with soap and water. We touch the hands of others, we handle door-knobs and other objects, we pick up filth and dirt, unconscious of the seeds of illness which in this way we take into our possession.

Dirty finger-nails harbor multitudes of germs. The cracks and crevices of neglected hands are dwelling places for the agents of disease. Unclean hands are a menace to all of us. Our hands and the hands of those we meet—upon the condition of all hands depend our health and welfare.

I am proud of the nurses I saw, and of the thoroughness of their training. Cleanliness, so essential to the success of the nurse, is exemplified in her hands.

The hands of the nurse show the quality of her preparation. I am glad the hands I saw were such attractive hands, dedicated to high service. No matter what their size or shape, they were beautiful hands.

Answers to Health Questions.

F. E. M. Q.—Would you consider it harmful to take any drug to develop the bust?

A.—Yes, it would be harmful to take any drug unless it was prescribed for you by a physician. Massage the bust with cocoa butter. This will help to develop it.

A READER. Q.—I have a large purple mark on my nose left by a boil. What can I do for this?

A.—Time will reduce this mark. Try fading it with peroxide.

* * *

A DAILY READER. Q.—For the past two years I have been bowling continually, which has developed my right arm. Now my left arm is out of proportion to my right arm. What would you advise me to do to develop the muscles of the left arm?

A.—The only way to develop the muscles is to try systematic exercising with the left arm each day.

* * *

L. A. W. Q.—Will you kindly state the time of quarantine for smallpox, scarlet fever, chickenpox, and measles?

A.—The quarantine in smallpox: Until all crusts have disappeared. Scarlet fever: Until peeling is complete and there are no discharges from ear or mucuous membrane. Chickenpox: Usually four weeks, and until all scabs are off. Measles: Five days after disappearance of rash and all catarrhal symptoms have disappeared.

ALICE. Q.—Will you kindly tell me what causes a bad breath, and how I can correct this condition?

A.—This may be due to constipation, indigestion, diseased tonsils, decayed teeth, or nasal catarrh. An examination is necessary to determine the cause, and then suitable treatment can be prescribed.

How You Can Give Yourself a Real Beauty-Rest Treatment

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

ALL of us have noticed how a restful countenance makes one appear charming and at her best. There is a decided attraction about the calm, gentle, restful person. This charm is inevitable and to some it seems even unexplainable. But if you think it over, you'll see why charm naturally follows.

Think of the person whose features always wear a troubled, harassed expression. She looks worried and ill at ease about something, and being with her makes you feel worried and ill at ease.

On the other hand, if you are worried about something and your face is screwed up into unpleasant lines, you may come in contact with some one who is calm and collected and apparently has all the characteristics that you lack for the moment. And before you know it you have changed. Her soothing presence has this magic effect on you.

The whole trouble is that you've worked yourself into a state of unrest over some worry that you can't help at all by fretting about it, or else you've let yourself grow very tired and over-wrought.

Perhaps you've guessed that the principle I'm going to dwell upon here is relaxation. There's nothing like it to calm your nervous system and bring spontaneous charm to your features.

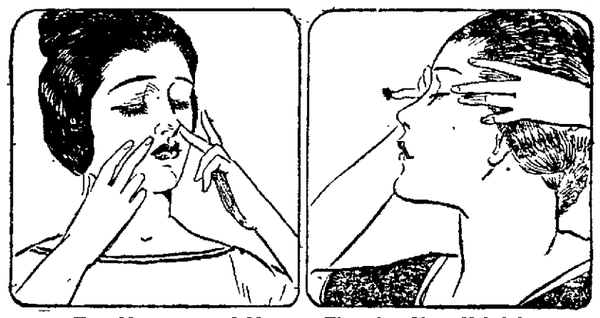

Bodily fatigue quickly affects you all over, you know. When your muscles become tired, greater nerve force is required to stimulate them, and everyday activities that normally do not over-exert you become a great effort to your over-worked nerves. This condition is reflected in the lifeless appearance of your skin, the lack of luster in your eyes and the tired lines in your face.

Now I'm going to give you two simple massage movements which will do much to refresh you. A few minutes spent at this several times a day will be the next best thing to a good nap in a cool, darkened room. And most of us cannot indulge in such a luxury during the day.

But if you are busy at a desk or behind a counter or on a shopping expedition you can surely find time to slip into a rest room and try the following:

Close your eyes. Close your mouth, not firmly, but in an easy relaxed way. Take the middle finger of each hand and rub upward from the corners of your mouth to the sides of your nose.

Repeat this a number of times, making the rubbing movement easy,

Two Movements of Massage That Are Very Helpful.

but pressing slightly so that the tired muscle beneath is stimulated by the movement.

The second massage movement is for your eyes.

First, simply close them gently. Place your finger-tips over them so as to shut out all possible light. Think of nothing at all, simply relax and let your mind be a blank.

With your eyes still closed, take your middle fingers and massage upward at the corners.

These movements will take only a few minutes, and they will do wonders to rest you.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT The Magic Gift

Copyright, 1923, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

KAREN has a pair of new shoes.

And they're red—bright red, with the most impudent little heels and the sauciest slashes across the front that you ever beheld.

Winifred Black

And Karen says she's "all shivery inside" every time she thinks of those shoes.

For Karen is an old-fashioned little girl with an old-fashioned mother and an old-fashioned father.

She lives in a large city which is reputed to be very gay, but she lives, too, in an old-fashioned house set in an old-fashioned garden in an old-fashioned part of town.

And she has a canary bird in a cage, and five kittens in the basement, and a curly dog on the front porch, and every once in a while, on a rainy day, Karen slips up into the garret and plays with her dolls, though she doesn't like to confess it, for Karen is all of twelve years old.

She Was Fond of Red

And most girls of her age are ashamed of ever having played with dolls at all. Karen has yellow hair—no, not yellow, it's too pale for that— and she's very fair, with just the faintest tinge of pink in her cheeks, and her eyes are very blue and very deep.

She has always been fond of red—has Karen.

Once, when she was quite a little girl, she was walking with an adoring aunt in the crowded streets of the city.

And in a window stood a large doll, dressed in a white dress, embroidered in scarlet, and the doll wore a scarlet hat, and carried in her stiff, dollish hand a little scarlet bag.

And Karen's blue eyes shone like stars, and she stood perfectly still and would not move from the window—until her aunt took her into the shop and bought for her the white dress, embroidered in scarlet, and the scarlet hat and the scarlet bag.

And Karen wore the dress and hat and carried the bag until they were all three threadbare and shabby, and when her mother said the dress must be thrown away, as it was too worn to be mended, or even freshened again, Karen went up into the attic and took her biggest doll into her arms, and they found her there, after an hour—crying very softly.

And Karen has since then always dressed rather plainly, for her mother doesn't believe in finery for children.

But the other day, when she and her mother went down-town to buy some shoes for school wear, Karen saw in the window—the scarlet shoes.

And she caught her breath and her eyes shone like stars, and she stopped and looked, and looked.

And Karen's mother bought the scarlet shoes for her, and Karen couldn't wait to have them sent home—she was afraid there might be some mistake! So she carried them home herself, and on the way she tore a little hole in the paper and looked to be sure that they were as scarlet as she thought they were.

Do You Remember?

And when she got home she put them on and sat in front of the mirror and gazed and gazed at the beautiful shoes. And when she took them off at night she set them on the window sill where she would see them the first thing in the morning, the minute she awoke.

And Karen's mother told her that she might put the shoes right on and wear them whenever she wanted to, and Karen's eyes filled suddenly with tears.

No, her name isn't Karen at all, but don't you remember little Karen in the old fairy story? She was the one who had the beautiful scarlet shoes. How beautifully she danced in them, and what lovely things the garden flowers said to her when she walked in the garden in her scarlet shoes.

Dear little Karen—may your red shoes never lead down any path except one where the sun shines and where the flowers are blooming, and may you keep always in your heart the magic gift of delight in small things—for that way lies the road to happiness.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON
The Authority on Home Cooking

Six Recipes for Pickles and Other Delicacies.

IF your family likes melon-rind pickles, it's about time to make things, isn't it? Then, there are the too-often-neglected gooseberries that make a delightful marmalade, nor should you forget peach conserve, tomato honey and other dainties that should not be overlooked. The more things we can make successfully at home the better the table will be in the winter.

Watermelon Sweet Pickles.

Cut the deep rinds of a ripe watermelon into inch-wide and three-inch long pieces, then pare off the green outside skin. Put the rinds in a crock and pour over enough scalded vinegar to cover and let stand over night. Next day reheat the vinegar, pour it over again and let stand until cold. Drain off the vinegar and weigh the rinds. To five pounds of rind, allow 3½ pounds of sugar. Pour over the vinegar again and add a large spice-bag. Boil gently, skim well, until the rinds are tender when pricked with a broom splint. Then skim them out and boil down the syrup until it is heavy and rich, adding a tablespoonful of cloves, a little broken cinnamon and a very thinly sliced lemon with the seeds removed. Return the rinds to the syrup, cook until thoroughly heated through, then remove spice-bag; can and seal. This pickle also keeps well in carefully covered crocks in a cool, dry room. Citron melons, honey dew and the deep pink cantaloupe melon rinds may be done in the same way.

Gooseberry Marmalade.

Wash four baskets of large, ripe gooseberries and place in a kettle with just enough water to cover them. Cook until they are tender, then rub through a fine seive. Allow a cupful of sugar to a cupful of pulp and cook down, stirring frequently, for about 40 minutes. Then put into jam-pots.

Green Tomato Sweet Pickle.

Wash and chop thirty green tomatoes, fifteen good-sized red onions, a half-cupful of finely-chopped celery leaves, two or three large cucumbers seeded and chopped, and a half-cupful of salt. Let stand over night, then drain and put into the preserve-kettle with a quart of vinegar and two pints of sugar. Add a large spice-bag and cook gently until the mass begins to be thick. A piece of ginger-root and a half-lemon with seeds removed may be cooked with the pickle and removed when the spice-bag is taken out. If the pickle is properly cooked, it will keep in an open crock, but if not cooked sufficiently it will spoil. So if there is any doubt, it is safer to seal it hot in jars.

Tomato Honey.

Wash and cut tomatoes up in pieces and add the grated rind of two or more lemons. Cook until quite thick, then press through a puree-sieve. For each pint of pulp add a cupful each of honey and sugar and the juice of three lemons. Cook until the consistency of honey, then seal in half-pint jars. This is a condiment that may be used over vegetable fritters, fried bread, or even over wheat cakes served with sausage.

Tomato Paste

Wash and peel as many tomatoes as are to be done, then boil until soft, adding as they boil two or more large onions and three buds of garlic minced fine, half a bay leaf, salt to taste and pepper to taste. Put through a puree-sieve when done, return to the kettle and cook down slowly to a heavy paste, stirring constantly to keep it from burning. Then seal in small jars. This is used for coloring soups and as a flavoring agent.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, JULY 21.

Portentous conditions again prevail, according to the adverse sidereal operations. The luminaries are in square aspect. Mars is also inimical and the destructive and iconoclastic Uranus holds evil sway. It may be difficult to achieve much under such negative rule, yet Jupiter lends some ray of assistance and may help neutralize some of the anxiety, especially if the tendency to be rash, quarrelsome and impulsive be suppressed and business be quietly attended to.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter difficulties, but should quickly attend to business and refrain from quarrels and reckless actions. Safeguard the domestic circle. A child born on this day may be most fortunate in its affairs.

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE A MAN NEVER EATS WITH HIS WIFE.

OF all the countries in the world, there is none where the customs are stranger than in Barotseland, in Northern Rhodesia, Africa.

Unlike many wild nations, Barotseland boasts of a well-organized government. It even has a parliament and chief's privy council.

Husband Is the Cook.

In the council there are rigid laws regarding the birth of children. Should a woman bear triplets, two of them must be killed. They are considered bad luck.

The women do not remain at home housekeeping or tending the crops. In Barotseland the women are the hunters and fishers.

It is no unusual sight to see one of these Amazons wading in a stream with a large basket in front of her. She is engaged in procuring the fish for the family supper.

But when she goes home with her catch and her husband cooks the fish, the matron of Barotseland sits down in solitary state and eats her supper without the companionship of her husband.

The reason for this is amusing in its naivete. For it is explained in this way:

Naturally, a man is stronger than a woman, and in order to prevent any signs of greediness, he allows her to eat by herself. Because, owing to his superior strength, he might be tempted to grab the largest and choicest pieces of the food before she had her share.

This possibility is removed by their dining separately, and therefore removing all temptation.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Surprise Junior Chanted to Madge and Katherine.

MY mother-in-law handed back the telegram I had transcribed, and hurried out of the room to resume command of her housecleaning squad upstairs. With it in my hand, I turned to Katherine, meeting in her eyes the same eager interest which I knew was in my own.

"So Mamie's watching the windows, is she?" she commented, rising. "Come, Junior, let's see what we can see out of them."

Holding my small son by the hand, she stood for a minute looking toward the house across the road.

"What do you see, Junior?" she asked, and I realized that she was seizing the opportunity to give him something to think about besides the unfortunate references to his grandmother which his tenacious little mind was treasuring up.

The question evidently recalled to his mind a game I recently had played with him, for he looked earnestly out of the window for a minute, then closed his eyes and waving his arm around vigorously, began to chant:

"See house, chimney, smoke, fence, dog, horses, man."

His voice ran down like a spent top, and he opened his eyes, patiently awaiting applause from his audience. Katherine and I clapped our hands vigorously, while Junior beamed.

"Take your bow, Junior," Katherine commanded, and when the little lad looked at her with puzzled eyes, she swept him up into her arms rapturously.

Relaying the Telegram.

"You are the most adorable thing on earth, Junior!" she announced, kissing him, but after kissing her back, he wriggled to be set down.

"Wanna see more fings," he announced, as he ran back to the window.

"I suppose psychologists would say we were fostering the love of applause in him," I said worriedly.

"I suppose so," she agreed, "but I wouldn't lose any sleep over it. Did you ever know anyone who didn't work for applause, abstract or concrete?"

"I haven't time to think about the answer," I retorted, smiling. "Will you watch the stewing chicken—and Junior, while I relay this telegram to the Durkees?"

"Of course," was her ready answer, and I called the Durkee house at Marvin.

Alfred evidently was waiting for the message, for he answered the telephone, and his voice was excited and nervous as he asked for my news.

"The best," I answered. "Dr. Braithwaite will be here in three days." And I relayed the rest of the message.

"Of course we approve of any hospital he selects," he said, as I finished. "Let me have his address, and I'll do the rest of the arranging from here or my office. You've done enough, I think."

"Men, Horses in Yard."

"Not half what I'd like to do," I countered earnestly. "How is your mother?"

"Simply fine," was his response. "She seemed to take a new lease of life when she heard about Dr. Braithwaite—says she isn't afraid any more. She's asleep just now, and Leila is with her, or I'd call one of them to the 'phone. I know they want to talk to you."

"I'll be in day after to-morrow," I promised, "sooner if you need me. Don't forget that you're to 'phone me if you want me."

"Thank you, I'll remember," he answered, and then I had said good-by, and realized with a little sigh of relief that the arrangements for Mrs. Durkee's operation were now out of my hands. Alfred would attend to everything.

Time did not hang on my hands, however. Katherine had brought down her mending, necessarily neglected during her last sojourn at the hospital, and in the intervals of getting dinner, I helped her put everything in perfect order, so that when she should go to Mrs. Durkee, she would have no petty personal details to hinder her.

I brought out a basket of Junior's favorite wooden animals and blocks, and he built houses and dramatized the lives of his inanimate pets in a constant chatter which also took in numerous trips to the window which seemed to fascinate him.

Absorbed in our own conversation, we paid little heed to his prattle, until the insistent repetition of one particular chant, finally caught our attention.

"Men, horses ride in yard. Man's break window, run across road."

ADVICE TO GIRLS :: :: :: By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young woman twenty years old, and have been married and divorced. I am going with a young man whom I love very dearly. There are times I think he cares for me and again I think he does not. What can I do to win his love? BLUE EYES.

BLUE EYES: There is nothing you can do, my dear, to force a young man's love or attention. Simply be sweet and natural when you are with him. This is all you can do.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl and am in love with two young men. One is twenty-two, the other twenty-five. They both want me to marry them. I dearly love the one of twenty-two, but he wants me to wait several months. The other one is waiting for his answer at once. They are both nice young men. Please advise me what to do. DOLLY.

DOLLY: You have made a mistake, my dear, when you say you are in love with two young men. This is impossible. Tell them both frankly that you care for their friendship, but that you will not marry because you are not sure of yourself. Wait until you are really in love—you will know when you are—and you will have no trouble deciding.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon:—Is it proper for a bride-to-be to have her girl friends come to see her trousseau before she is married? Should I serve something? What do you think I would need for traveling?

Would you have the ceremony at the minister's home with a quiet ceremony and then come home and have a little dinner, or be married at home We have no piano and I always imagined it was necessary to have a wedding march played.

Must we give the bridesmaid and best man nice presents? We do not feel we can afford it along with the other heavy expenses and being of very modest incomes.

Do you think this menu would be all right? (There will be about fifteen people present) Roasted sliced chicken, potatoes, salad, ice cream and cake, pickles, etc. August Bride

P. S. I forgot to mention that I am marrying the nicest man I know.

A. It is a pretty custom for the bride-to-be to have her girl friends in to see her trousseau and hope chest You might serve tea and wafers.

A plain light weight dark summer silk would be good for traveling. Or, since you are not to be married until August, why not get a suit?

A pretty wedding at home would be nice but might take more work than going to the minister's house and then going home for a little reception. You can be married just as well without the wedding march, altho you might feel defrauded of your birthright as a bride.

Your menu is all right, you might add coffee.

Glad you are getting the "nicest man". That's what we all think about our own, I guess.

Dear Mary Gordon:—Please tell me something about the different ways of removing stains. —M. K. U.

A. Stains on fabrics or garments should always be removed as soon as possible. The older a stain is, the harder it "sets." It not only disfigures but is apt to eat away the fiber. Always remove stains before washing.

In removing stains remember that acids injure vegetable fibres and alkalis injure animal fibers. Whenever possible, use water either hot or cold and sometimes steam (from a teakettle spout.) When an acid is used on cotton or linen goods, finished by rubbing with a weak solution of sodium acetate or other mild alkali to neutralize the acid and protect the fabric. Water sponging is not safe as it merely dilutes the acid.

Absorbing, dissolving and bleaching are three ways of removing stains.

To use absorbents, cover grease spots with powdered absorbents, such as talcum, fuller's earth, French chalk, starch or bolted meal and let stand for several hours. Brush carefully and repeat if needed. For dry blood, or ink stains, starch paste is an excellent absorbent. Cover freshly spilled liquids with any of the above powders or pieces of blotting paper to prevent the liquid from spreading and soaking into the fabric.

Another method of absorbing stains is to lay the stained fabric on white blotting paper (or soft, unglazed white paper) cover with absorbent powder or more paper, and apply a warm iron. Repeat using fresh paper or powder until the stain is entirely removed.

To use solvents water:—Soak washable goods in cold water and wash with tepid or cold water and white soap. Use hot water in the same way or by stretching goods over a bowl and pouring boiling water from a height.

Note:—Hot water sets some stains such as blood, meat juice, milk and egg. Place non washable materials over a pad of white cloth or absorbent paper—sponge, using very little water at a time. Change the pad as it becomes soiled or wet. Rub gently till dry. Caution—water spots some materials; experiment with a sample.

Other solvents, such as alcohol, benzine, carbon tetra-chloride, chloroform, ether, gasoline and turpentine, can be used on materials that water will spot. Place the stained goods over a pad of cloth, apply the solvent, and work from the edge of the stain to the center. Change the under pad frequently.

To use bleaching agents, a number of short applications of dilute bleaches are safer than long applications of strong bleaches. Always remember a bleach is likely to remove dye form colored fabrics. Sunlight, lemon juice, sour milk, borax, sulphur, oxalic acid, hydrogen peroxide, potassium permanganate or Javelle water are commonly used bleaches.

Place the stain, such as fruit, ink, iron, etc., over a bowl of hot water and apply the bleaching agent a drop at a time. (A medicine dropper is indespensible for the housewife.) When the stain changes color, dip into the water, rinse with ammonia and then clear water. Caution—Use Javelle water only on white cotton and linen. If the potassium permanganate leaves a pink stain remove it with dilute oxalic acid. Never add Javelle water carelessly to wash water—use it as a bleach only.

To Prepare Stain Removers

Javelle water: One half pound chloride of lime dissolved in two quarts of cold water. Disolve one pound of washing soda in one quart of boiling water. Pour the clear liquid from the chloride of lime into a bottle and mix with the solution of washing soda. Cork and keep in a dark place.

Oxalic acid (poison), dissolve one ounce of the acid crystals in three quarters of a cup of warm water.

Potassium Permanganate: Dissolve one teaspoon crystals in one pint water.

Hydrogen Peroxide: Add a few drops of ammonia just before using to make it work more quickly.

Thankful: I'm awfully sorry, but I cannot use letters that savor of religious discussion in this column. I do not have L. D's. address, but if she wishes to read your letter, which would undoubtedly bring her a great deal of comfort, I would be glad to forward it to her.

Dear Mary Gordon: Could you give me some suggestions in the use of old georgette? I have quite a bit and would like to use it in some way as I no longer care to wear it. Fay

You do not tell me what color the georgette is. If it is white or some pale color, it might make fancy little curtains for some favorite spot in your house. It might also be worked into lovely underwear.

A Porch Supper

What fills the family with so much anticipation as the thought of a cool, refreshing supper served on the lawn under the shade of the trees, or on a comfortable porch?

Serve foods which can be almost wholly prepared in the morning while doing other work in the kitchen.

Combine foods in sandwiches, salads desserts and other ways, to avoid use of extra silver and china in serving and to simplify effort in carrying food to the lawn or porch. A large tray or a tea wagon is a labor saver.

Paper napkins, paper doilies and oil cloth luncheon sets save linen laundry.

Serve one hot dish, especially for the children, as this seems to be an aid to digestion.

Just to see how easy it is to prepare a substantial as well as appetizing meal, try this menu:

Scalloped Ham and Corn
Combination Vegetable Salad
Radishes
Raisin Bread Sandwiches
Jellied Peaches Wafers
Iced Tea

Schedule for morning work:

Combine scalloped ham and corn, pour into a casserole and place in fireless cooker or set in a cool place and bake 45 minutes before serving.

Clean lettuce and cut up vegetable for salad. Any left over peas, beans, beets, carrots, etc., may be used. The vegetables may be marinated with a little French Dressing. Set in cool place to chill.

Clean and trim radishes. Set in cool place to chill.

Combine salad dressing.

Combine jellied apricots or peaches and set to mould in individual desert dishes.

HIKE FROM COAST TO COAST

Y Boys Stop for Vist at Local Institution.

Wednesday evening the local Y. M. C. A. boys' department had as its guests for bath and swim three members of the Y. M. C. A. from Trenton, N. J. The boys were Hill Sharlin, Sam Romansky and Fred Combe. The boys carried with them letters from the mayor of Trenton, N. J., and also the secretary of the Y. M. C. A. According to the letter they represented prominent families of Trenton and were making this hike as a self-improvement project.

The boys baggage consisted of a small haversack. They had no extra luggage. They hiked from Fremont to Lincoln yesterday. After spending an hour in the swimming pool they hiked out again on the D. L. D. and said they planned to walk until about 2 o'clock this morning, when they would lie down in a grove and sleep until about 10 o'clock. The boys were healthy and said they were having the time of their lives. They expressed themselves as very grateful to the hospitality of the Y. M. C. A. thruout the country, saying that they had been the guest of every Y. M. C. A. on the road. When they left Lincoln they carried greetings from Boys' Secretary Vessey to Y. M. C. A.'s of the western region where they will stop. The boys plan to reach the coast and take the train back to their home in New Jersey in time for school.

"Won't Talk Me Out of Title Again", Lew Tendler Declares

BENNEH IS HANDY WITH VOCAL CORDS

Both Leonard and Challenger Are in Fine Shape for Championship Battle—Knock Off Hard Training.

By Henry L. Farrell.

NEW YORK, July 20.—"Benneh" Leonard and Lew Tendelr, who are to battle here Monday night for the world's lightweight championship, will knock off their training tonight.

Leonard plans to return to his mother's apartment up in Harlem and Tendler will return to his home in Philadelphia to await the first official act of the program which comes with the weighing in at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Leonard Can't Make Weight?

Some concern is being felt about Leonard's ability to make the weight, but Billy Gibson, his manager, said today that the champion was under 135 pounds now, and that he would not fill out too much before the day of the fight.

Leonard, who makes good use of his talking through out and out of the ring, has been directing verbal shots at the Philadelphia challenger from his training camp up in the Catskills.

"I'll just play around with him for a while and let him have it in about the seventh round," the champion said.

There is no press agent stuff in the story that there is little love lost between Tendler and Leonard. The falling out came when Tendler grabbed a $5,000 forfeit after Leonard had broken his hand and could not go thru with a bout scheduled in Philadelphia some time ago. It is understood that Tendler returned the forfeit money recently.

Both In Good Shape.

All of the experts who have looked over the champion in training say that he seems to be in perfect condition. His two fights with Pinkey Mitchell and Alex Hart apparently got him back on edge after his hitch on the stage last winter.

Tendler, according to those who have seen the challenger, is also in good physical and mental tettle. The Philadelphia southpaw claims that while Leonard may have found out a lot about his left handed fighting in their last meeting that he himself has learned how to close his ears and hear nothing when Benny starts his monolog in the ring.

"I was talked out of that title once and it will never happen again," Tendler said.

TOWLE-JOHNSON IN HARDEST MATCH YET

Go Twenty-one Holes Before a Verdict Is Reached—Finals in All Flights to Be Played Saturday.

There are four golfers surviving in all six flights of the city golf tournament and before sundown Friday there will be but two, as all semi-final matches are scheduled to be played today. Finals, which will be thirty-six holes, will be played Saturday.

The hardest fought match which has been staged in any flight since the tournament began developed in the third flight Thursday when C. B. Towle won on the twenty-first green from J. H. Johnson. They came in all square and remained that way for two extra holes, Mr. Towle winning on the third, going out the second time.

Interest naturally is focused on the first flight. Willard Folsom plays Jack Whitten, while Joe Tucker, Antelope's last survivor in the first bracket, is paired with A. M. Bunting.

There has been no defaulting in the first flight and every match thus far, with one or two exceptions, has been close.

The only other extra-hole match which developed Thursday was between Bob Hall and Max Johnson in the accident flight, Hall winning on the nineteenth.

SECOND ROUND RESULTS.

Third Flight.

E. M. Knight won from Elgin Asbury, 1 up.
C. B. Towle won from J. H. Johnson, 1 up in twenty-one.

Walter B. Roberts won from B. C. Hopewell by default.

Fourth Flight.

H. J. Bowers won from R. E. Powell.
A. J. Smith won from J. M. Stewart, 2 and 1.
W. A. Gray won from W. W. Wheatley, 4 and 3.
C. F. Ladd won from S. J. Bell, 2 and 1.

Accident Flight.

G. B. Hunt won from C. L. Carper, 2 and 1.
C. F. Chapman won from Dave Cravens, 3 and 2.
Bob Hall won from Max Johnson, 1 up in nineteen.
William Aitken won from Lynn Lloyd, 3 and 2.

To Play Postponed Game in S. S. League

The league-leading First Methodists of University Place and the Second Baptists get together in a postponed game at Landis field Friday evening. The way the league now stands, the Baptists, by defeating the Methodists, would pull the leaders down where, if the St. Paul Methodists win in a game to be played July 31, the championship race will end in a tie, requiring another play-off.

FOUR GOLFERS TIED FOR THE MET OPEN

Hagen Has Never Engaged in an Open Championship Where More "Kick" Was Derived Than in Present.

BY WALTER HAGEN
Former British and American Open Champion

CANOE BROOK CLUB, SUMMIT, N. J., July 20.—Thursday's golf in the metropolitan open championship has furnished more thrills than the open championship in the past ten years, or at least since I have been in tournament play. The open last week at Inwood was tame in comparison. After Wednesday's first round there were four players tied for first place with the excellent score of seventy-two, three of these players, Hampton, Kerrigan and Farrell fell back little bit but Joe Kirkwood and Big Bob MacDonald came thru to take their place. This pair with MacDonald smith, have a total of 146 while I am only one shot behind.

Jim Barnes Shoots a 70

Goodscores came thick and fast. I did not arrive at the links until about 1 o'clock. I was told immediately of the fine round of seventy that had been played by Long Jim Barnes, which put him in the fight for this championship. MacDonald Smith, who is a former title holder had registered a seventy-four and his total of 146 stood out as a mark for the rest of the leaders to shoot at.

Kirkwood and myself got a rather late start but only a few holes ahead of us was Bob MacDonald. Reports came back to our gallery that he was gaining like a house afire. He was out in thirty-three and home in thirty-six for a sixty-nine which established a new record in competition for this course. Kirkwood started brilliantly and was able to do his first nine also in thirty-three. It was bang up golf and Joe was doing everything well. I tried to keep pace with him but slipped off on a couple of holes and was out in thirty-five—two strokes worse. Encouraged by his fine outward half Joe played like a champion from there in and beat par by a stroke, taking a thirty-five. This gave him a total of sixty-eight and Bob MacDonald's record lasted for scarcely twenty-five minutes.

Success Due to Putting

Kirkwood's success was due chiefly to his remarkable putting. The greens are trifle tricky and one must look clase to get the lee with the put. Kirkwood's round was just ten strokes less than he made yesterday. My own playing was what might be called consistant, tho one would hardly call it brilliant. I required thirty-nine on the inward half, which ran my score up to 74 and I am just one notch behind the leaders. Little Gene Sarazen has not been able to get his game working to his satisfaction, he did a 75 and is rather far back with a total of 152. Bobby Cruickshank is another golfer that is watched closely. His seventy-four Thursday left him with a total of 149.

Danger which threatened from the ranks of the amateurs was eliminated today when Frank Dyer the metropolitan amateur champion registered an eighty-two. The course is in fine condition and has none of the problems we had to deal with at Inwood, while Thursday's golf was spectacular, I am inclined to believe that it will be just as sensational Friday.

Dozen Still Have Chance

There are at least a dozen players who have a chance to win. Of the four leaders, MacDonald Smiht, Bob Macdonald and myself have all won this title. Mac Smith won it nine years ago when he established a record at Scarsdale for seventy-two hole tournament play. His total that year was 278. We look for a busy day tomorrow as a double round will be played by all the contestants, who have a chance to win.

PHANTOM MIKE SAYS TOM CAN GET TITLE

Brother of Heavyweight Contender Comes to Lincoln for Short Visit With Game Warden Koster.

By John Bentley.

Looking less like the greatest middleweight boxer who ever went uncrowned than the successful business man which he now is, Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul "phantom," dropped into Lincoln Thursday for a brief visit with Game Warden George Koster.

The "phantom" has put on weight since he quit the ring. That is quit appearing in it. He's still associated with the fight game as manager of a stable of boxers, three of whom appear in Omaha Friday night.

The "phantom" in his day was noted for his cleverness. They couldn't hit him. He carried a fair-sized wallop but was never able to wrest the laurels from Jack Dillon. He outboxed the champion every time they met but it always has taken more than points to get a title.

Mike didn't wait long in bringing up the subject of his brother Tommy Gibbons, and the latter's chances of beating Jack Dempsey if they ever get together again.

"Tommy has an excellent chance of winning from Dempsey if they ever appear in a ring where the rules give Tom an even break," Mike said.

While he did not go into detail, Gibbons referred to the trouble between himself and Tom.

"Just a little misunderstanding that would have gone unnoticed among most people," he said.

He said Tommy came to see him two days after his return to St. Paul from Shelby.

Getting back to the Shelby fight, Mike demonstrated the "rabbit" punch with which Dempsey weakened the challenger; told about how Referee Dougherty overlooked the clinching in the early rounds but how he separated the boxers during the later rounds when Tommy was making his last stand and was forced to hang on while Dempsey was trying to measure him.

Asked what he thought of Luis Angel Firpo, the "wild bull of the pampas," who will probably be Dempsey's next opponent, Gibbons described him as a "false alarm."

He also stated that Tommy, in the act in which he is now appearing on the vaudeville stage demonstrates how Dempsey socked him once when he (Tommy) was outside the upper strand of the ropes, instead of raising the rope and helping Gibbons back into the ring, as "any white man would have done."

Mike was cut in on a direct telephone wire from Shelby and he said he was far more excited over the outcome than he ever had been when he was doing the fighting himself.

"When the sixth and seventh rounds were over and it was looking pretty dark for Tommy, I felt I felt I couldn't listen any longer and yet I couldn't get the receiver away from my ear," he said. Mike bears a striking resemblance to pictures of Tom. Mike returned to Omaha Thursday evening.

SUN SETS ON DAY OF A HUGE PURSE

Tex Rickard Explains That Around New York, of Course, It's Different—"Charity" Bouts a Farce.

By Paul R. Mallon.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Fight promoters are beginning to talk more sense and less money every day.

Tex Rickard, the premier, says the day of $300,000 purses passed with the fiasco out in Shelby, Mont.—remembered by some as the scene of some bout or other between one Jack Dempsey and Mr. Thomas Gibbons.

He hastens to add, however, in the next breath, that "around New York" there may be some dare-devil promoter who will try to offer somebody that much, but he expresses doubt as to whether it will ever be paid.

The 90-000 crowd at the Dempsey-Carpentier affair, which stirred up more interest in this country than any previous sporting event, will also remain the peak in attendance for some time to come, Rickard believes.

The Shelby affair seemed to awaken everyone in the fight game to the fact that fighters were getting too much money.

Dempsey is the only one who pulled out of the fight with enough money to wad a shotgun. Everyone else lost. Jack got $220,000, and the consensus of opinion is that was plenty.

Rickard showed his genius for promotion when he got Firpo and Willard into the ring for a percentage of the gate. He is not talking six figures to anyone, nowadays, without knowing what he is talking about.

The $220,000 Dempsey received would keep an ordinary man in luxury for a lifetime.

There have been arranged what the fighters call "benefit bouts" all over the country, for one charitable cause or another. The only thing that charity gets out of these fights is what is left over after the fighters get their purses.

Of course, no one is going to say that a fighter should not make a living. Bricklayers are making $12 a day, and they may be worth it. Some fighters are getting purses in six figures and they may be worth it—probably not.

But somehow or another, Eugene Criqui, the featherweight champion of the world, who never cashed any of these big purses, is finding time enough to go to France and fight for the disabled soldiers, and he is not taking a centime.

As he appeared during the days when his name was a nightmare to aspiring middleweights. He is a little overweight now and wears glasses. LINKS HOME FOR 3-SERIES STAND

Beatrice Opens Friday, Hastings Comes Monday and Fairbury Thursday—Last Road Trip Disastrous.

The Links are home again. And they had their hair all mussed up at all the points they stopped on the last road trip. They managed to divide two games and play a fourteen inning scoreless tie with Norfolk.

From there they went to Grand Island and dropped three out of four games. Then came Hastings where they closed Thursday with a loss which gave the Cubs a two-out-of three advantage.

To sum it up the Links lost six out of nine games.

The Beatrice Blues open Friday for a four-game stand, which will extend over Sunday. Hastings arrives Monday for three games and then comes Fairbury for three games.

With reinforcements coming from the defunct South Dakota league, Buck and his boy friends may be able during the visit with the home folks to take up some of the slack in that five and one-half game lead which the Norfolk Elkhorns are now enjoying.

"BARREL HOUSE" METHODS WIN

American Fencers Pull the Rough-Rough on British Cousins.

LONDON, July 20.—Victory of America in the fencing tournament with Britain at the Hotel Cecil last night was due to the "inelegant, roughhouse style of the Americans," London experts said today. They admitted however, that this tyle of fencing was most effective in breaking down the British defense.

The Americans scored eleven wins and five losses in the matches. Mr. Fleming, Mr. Jordan won four and Mr. Fleming scored his one. Wednesday, Mr. Jordan won one from Fleming and the other twenty-one games they played were draws.

Sportorial

There should be more of the spirit displayed by Criqui and Tommy Gibbons. The man who stood fifteen rounds with Dempsey didn't get a cent of the purse. He knew a week ahead of time that he wouldn't. Jack Kearns already had $200,000 and he threatened to leave the state if he wasn't given the remaining $100,000 that had been promised him by a bunch of bankrupt promoters. Just how much the sentiment of the populace of Montana had to do with Kearn's decision to let Dempsey fight, is perhaps irrelevant, but no one heard Gibbons threaten to back out.

Gibbons wanted a chance at the heavyweight title and he was willing to fight for nothing to get it.

It is also worthy of note that Georges Carpentier, dethroned idol of France, demanded pay to fight at the same show for disabled veterans that Criqui is entering for nothing.

In every bad lot you can always find one or two good peaches.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

ROBBERS FLEE AFTER ALARM

GIRL'S SCREAMS SAVE BEAVER CROSSING BANK.

Helen Ross Frustrates the Attempt of Two Bandits to Get at Money —Posses Are Making Search.

The presence of mind of Miss Helen Ross, employe of the State Bank of Beaver Crossing, prevented the looting of that institution by a trio of bandits who attempted a daylight robbery Thursday afternoon according to word reaching the law enforcement headquarters in Lincoln.

After being locked in a bank room of the bank, and told to remain there five minutes, Miss Ross attracted pedestrians by her screams and managed to make her escape thru an outside opening of the room.

The bandits asked for Cashier Warner when they entered the bank. When informed that he was not there they grabbed Miss Ross and forced her into the back room. The two bandits who entered the bank became alarmed when Miss Ross screamed and fled from the bank joining a third man who stood by an Essex car on the outside of the building. The three drove away at a high rate of speed in the direction of Friend, Neb., just as Miss Ross rounded the corner of the bank.

Miss Ross says that one of the men appeared to be about thirty-eight years old, weighed about 165 pounds and had a ruddy complexion. The other was a young man, smooth shaven and good looking. The older man put on a mask apparently made out of a stocking. The younger man was unmasked. She did not have a description of the man outside.

Officers Have Theory.

Disappearance of a Ford car in Omaha and subsequent desertion of the same near Greenwood and theft of an Essex roadster from the H. B. Schroeder farm, three and one-half miles southeast of Greenwood Wednesday night, furnishes the officers with this theory; that the men probably were out of Omaha and that their conduct following the attempted robbery gave indication that they desired to return to Omaha.

At least three posses out of Lincoln and several from other points, staged an unsuccessful hunt. That the Essex stolen from Greenwood is the same in which the bandits traveled is indicated from the story told by the nervy Miss Ross. After frightening the yeggs with her screams, she rushed around toward the front of the bank and saw the car disappear at high speed to the south. Because of the dust, she was a bit uncertain as to the license number, tho she was certain about 20-. The number on the car stolen from Greenwood was 20-2124.

A few moments after the attempt on the bank, tourists near Dorchester reported that an Essex touring car with three passengers was seen going east at a terrific clip. They were unable to get the number because of the dust.

Shortly before 6 p. m. word was received at state law enforcement headquarters that an Essex touring car with two passengers had stopped in Milford. A Colorado license number was tied on with string. One of the men asked the best road to Omaha and, according to the report, said that they did not want to pass thru Lincoln.

The larger man, according to Miss Ross, put on a mask apparently made from a stocking, after he entered the bank. The younger man was unmasked. Both were armed but gave no indication of it until the young lady refused to go into the back room. Weapons were then brought in evidence and she was roughly handled tho not hurt. They pushed her into the little back room and locked the door but did not take the precaution in closing a rear avenue of escape.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW

N. H. Bedell, secretary and treasurer of the Union Automobile Insurance company leaving for Los Angeles where the company is establishing executive headquarters. He has been a resident of Lincoln nearly all his life and is a member of the chamber of commerce, Lion's club, the Scottish rite bodies and the Shrine, and the American Legion, having served for about fourteen months during the world war.

Monday, July sixteenth, at the home of Mrs. Ida Cox, a family reunion was held for two sisters and a brother who have all passed the seventy-five-year mark. Mrs. Blackburn, seventy-eight, and her brother, Mr. Harden Angelo, seventy-six, both of Lincoln, met their sister, Mrs. Ferguson, eighty, for the first time in thirty years. Mrs. Ferguson, made the trip from Jacksonville, Ill., by automobile with her daughter and son-in-law. Twenty-eight were present and the evening was spent in visiting and recalling experiences of the past. At the close of the evening ice cream and cake were served by Mrs. Cox.

Dr. L. Stark of Hartington was in Lincoln Thursday, calling on state house friends. He has just closed up the administration of the estate of his father, Judge W. L. Stark, ex-congressman, who died at his home at Aurora on the original armistice day.

Valera and Mervyn Downs and their parents, Mr and Mrs. L. M. Downs left Thursday by auto for Cleveland to visit their brother, Floyd. They will tour the eastern states and return home in September.

REPAIR BOYD COUNTY ROAD

Governor Bryan Had Been Led to Believe It Might Equal Original Cost of Grading.

An attorney representing Peterson, Shirley and Guenther called at the state house Thursday to confer with State Auditor Marsh in regard to unpaid claims for road work. The attorney stated that an estimate just made showed that the Boyd county road project discussed by Governor Bryan, can be repaired for $1,500. The governor recently said the road had been paid for tho not completed or accepted and that it could not be turned over to the county for maintenance until completed and accepted, and the result was rains had washed it so that it would have to be practically rebuilt at a cost about equal to the original cost, which was $70,000.

Deputy Secretary Roy Cochran of the department of public works was asked Thursday afternoon if an estimate of $1,500 cost of repair had been made.

"No official estimate," he answered. "The road is to be fixed up right away."

Governor Bryan may take a look at this road on his way to visit his son at Minneapolis, and see for himself the extent of damage done by washing rains. The estimated cost of the road was around $70,000, but the grading actually cost about $30,000. The bridges, culverts and guard rail bring the total cost up to over $60,000. The grading alone is said to have been injured by rain.

SCHUYLER GIRLS DROWN IN SANDPIT

Rosabelle Sladek and Julia Husak Get Beyond Their Depth—Boy Bravely Attempts Rescue, But Fails.

SCHUYLER, Neb., July 19.—Rosabelle Sladek, eighteen years years old, and Julia Hausak, nineteen, were drowned at 6:30 o'clock this evening while wading in a sandpit which was deeper than they supposed, one-half mile east of this city. Miss Sladek was to have been married next week, and her friends and relatives gave her a shower Thursday.

The two girls with four others, one of whom was Miss Husak's sister, had been out for a swim in an attempt to escape the intense heat. Miss Husak went into the deep hole unexpectedly, and began calling for help. Miss Sladek followed her immediately, and both girls disappeared.

The other girls began screaming for help, and their cries attracted the attention of Melvin Johnson, eighteen years old, who plunged into the water and by heroic efforts succeeded in twice bringing both the girls to the surface, separately, only to lose his hold upon them.

The sandpit in which the drowning happened is owned by John Sedlacek.

TEACHER SUES FOR SALARY

Mrs. Jeannette Jones Korbel of Blair Appeals to Supreme Court for Full Year's Pay.

A woman teacher represented by a woman attorney, is suing the men comprising the board of education of the city of Blair. The fact that the client married the day after she filed her suit causes a little change in court records. The lady client failed to get what she wanted in the district court of Washington county, so she has appealed to the supreme court of Nebraska.

Her name is now Jeanette Jones Korbel. She added the latter name when she married. She was employed to teach in the second grade in the Central building at Blair. The board agreed to pay her $1,000 a year in nine monthly installments, and $125 bonus at the close of the contract. She commenced teaching under this contract September 13, 1920. She alleges she was dismissed October 20 without cause. She sued for $1,125.

The board of education defended on the ground that the contract gives the board the right to revoke or annul it at any time for any reason the board may deem sufficient; that the plaintiff refused to obey instructions of the superintendent of schools given under direction of the board; that she criticised methods of conducting the school and persistently defied the principal and attempted to disrupt the schools and the faculty. The board decided to annul the contract if the teacher did not resign. A committee of the board so informed her and she signed a resignation. The board later tendered her $100 due her, which she refused to accept. In the meantime the board accepted the resignation.

The judge took the case from a jury and entered judgment for the plaintiff in the sum of $100 which had been tendered. The plaintiff now contends the lower court erred in holding that she had resigned in the face of her showing that she withdrew the resignation the same day it was signed and there was no evidence that the board accepted it before it was withdrawn. Miss Grace Ballard is attorney for the plaintiff in error.

CAR IS FORCED INTO DITCH

Mr. and Mrs. Rainous and Family of University Place in Accident—Slightly Hurt.

After forcing a sedan driven by S. A. Rainous over an eight foot culvert into a water-filled ditch, an unidentified driver sped away in the darkness Thursday night and avoided pursuit. Mr. and Mrs. Rainous, 2115 N street, University Place, their three children, and a niece were riding in the sedan, but except for nervous shock and minor injuries, they were unhurt.

Mr. Rainous was driving south on a road near Stevens creek, at 9 o'clock and was intending to go to the University Place country club when the accident occurred. As he approached a culvert, a car coming from the opposite direction continued on its way on the wrong side of the road. Mr. Rainous slowed down to fifteen miles an hour, he said, but took to the ditch, not realizing how deep it was, rather than collide with the other auto.

Turning clear over, the sedan lighted in about a foot of muddy water. The fall was broken a little by bushes, which screened the ditch from view. The occupants scrambled out. W. W. Bauer, a friend, who was following, turned to pursue the auto which had gone by, but was unable to catch it, and returned to take the injured people to their home.

ITALIANS ENJOY A PICNIC THURSDAY

Over Three Hundred and Fifty Have Big Time at Bruse's Park —Many Guests Are Here From Omaha.

The Italians of Lincoln and many from Omaha made merry all day Thursday at an annual picnic at Bruse's park, two miles south of Lincoln. Over three hundred and fifty attended the festivities. Nearly a hundred Omahans of Italian descent were present. The picnickers began congregating early Thursday forenoon. Many places of business owned by these people were closed most of the day Thursday. At noon baskets of food were opened and luncheon was served. In the forenoon, a short ball game was staged between the school-boys and merchants. The youngsters emerged victorious. The final score stood 9 to 3.

The climax of the picnic was the dinner at 6 p. m. The afternoon was taken up by games and contests of various sorts. Ten one-dollar bills were placed on top of a thirty foot greased pole and offered to anyone who could get within reach. Joe Quattrochhi became the proud owner of the cash when he ascended to the top of the greased beam. In his climbing Mr. Quattrochhi was aided by a device made of a wire loop and wood handle.

A lively potato race was won by Gus Quattrochhi. Sam Eagle picked off the honors in both the men's and the fat men's foot races. The husky Omahan certainly did show some speed. Miss Josie Gatto left all competition in the dust in the girls' foot race. Boys' and women's races were also run. The prizes consisted of baseballs, ball bats, and silk shirts. A women's nail driving contest drew the attention of the picnickers for a few minutes. Mrs. M. Indovina proved to be the most adept at wielding a hammer. She was awarded a thirty pound can of coffee.

BOY'S SKULL IS FRACTURED

Schuyler Lad in an Accident Thursday at Fremont.

FREMONT, Neb., July 19.—Donald Seigler, twelve, of Schuyler, visiting in Fremont at the home of David Woods, was seriously injured this morning while riding a bicycle which was struck by a car said to have been driven by Mrs. Bert Keene, a Fremont woman. The lad suffered a fracture at the base of his skull but physicians hold out hope for his recovery. The crash occurred at an intersection. The boy was carrying a basket of groceries on his wheel and apparently failed to see the approaching auto. He was picked up from the pavement in an unconscious condition.

To Build Second Electric Plant.

BEATRICE, Neb., July 19.—Black Bros., Mills company, of Beatrice, recently awarded the contract for furnishing the city of Beatrice electric current, has started work on a second hydro-electric plant to be constructed southeast of this city on what is known as the old paper mill site. When completed this project will furnish yearly, 1,100,000 kilowatts, and will be added to the hydro-electric plant now nearing completion at Blue Springs. The Beatrice company was last evening awarded the contract for furnishing Wymore electric current.

Thefts Attibuted to Gang of Boys.

BEATRICE, Neb., July 19.—County Attorney Harold Mattoon is waging war on youthful delinquents who have been causing city and county officials considerable trouble. Numerous petty thefts have been located to this gang, the police securing eight plugs of smoking tobacco, several packages of cigaret papers, and other articles when three of the lads were taken into custody. A fourteen-year-old lad was ordered committed to the industrial school at Kearney yesterday, and three other lads, twelve, nine, and eleven years of age will face Judge Colby in district court Friday.

SUPREME COURT SYLLABI.

Opinions filed July 13, 1923:

In re estate of Vandeveer. Wooding v. Williams. Appeal, Nemaha. Affirmed. Opinion by Morrissey, C. J.

When it becomes necessary to construe a will the entire instrument will be considered, and if, from its language, the intention of the testatrix can be ascertained such decree will be entered as best effectuates the intention therein expressed.

Bennett v. Moon. Appeal, Polk. Reversed and remanded with directions. Opinion by Colby, District Judge.

1. Under a proper state of facts courts of equity will take cognizance of actions requiring the specific performance of agreements concerning real property, including leases as well as deeds.

2. While the granting of the equitable remedy for the specific performance of a contract to convey or lease real property is a matter of discretion, yet this means a sound discretion controlled by established principles of equity, and when the contract is in writing, is certain in its terms, is fair and just and capable of being enforced without hardship, the remedy should be granted as a matter of course.

3. Where a written executory contract to lease contains a definite statement of the particular elements of the lease, but is silent as to the general, usual and ordinary covenants and conditions, these will be implied and a decree for specific performance granted.

Holmquist Elevator Co. v. Omaha Elevator Co. Appeal, Douglas. Affirmed. Opinion by Letton, J.

1. After all the testimony in the action had been introduced, the court discharged the jury and entered a judgment for the plaintiff upon the undisputed facts and admissions in the pleadings and in open court, held, that this was not prejudicial error since under the evidence it would have been the duty of the court to direct a verdict for the plaintiff, if the jury had not been discharged.

2. Sales of grain made upon the floor of the Omaha Grain Exchange by one member of the exchange to another member, are governed by the rules of the grain exchange.

3. Evidence examined and held to support the findings and judgment of the trial court.

Glarizio v. Davis. Appeal, Douglas. Affirmed. Opinion by Blackledge, district judge.

1. Whenever there is evidence of so positive and significant a character as, if uncontradicted, would support a verdict, it is the duty of the trial court to submit the case to the jury, under proper instructions. It is not the function of the court to weigh the evidence for the purpose of saying how the verdict should go.

2. The trial court in this case committed no error prejudicial to defendant in submitting the case to the jury upon the doctrine of "the last clear chance," as applied to the charge of negligence submitted for their consideration.

3. The amount of verdict held, under the circumstances of this case, not so large that a remittitur should be required by this court.

In re assessment of Citizens State Bank of Bloomfield. Citizens State Bank of Bloomfield v. Board of Equalization of Knox county. Appeal, Knox. Affirmed. Opinion by Colby, district judge.

1. Under section 6343, Rev. St. 1913, as amended in 1919, providing for the taxation of banks, it is the duty of the county board of equalization, whenever a bank shall have acquired real estate which is assessed separately, to deduct the assessed value of such real estate from the capital stock of the bank.

2. A banking corporation is not authorized by law to deduct in its tax schedule the book value of its banking house property, but can lawfully only deduct the assessed value thereof.

Engdahl v. Laverty. Appeal, Cherry. Affirmed. Opinion by Rose, J.

1. The statute permitting intervention before trial as a matter of right does not prevent a court of equity, in the exercise of discretion in furtherance of justice, from allowing intervention after the trial has begun.

2. While leave to intervene after the entry of a final decree is not allowable as a matter of right and is generally denied, a court of equity, subsequent to the entry of an unexecuted decree foreclosing a mortgage, may, in the exercise of discretion in furtherance of justice, permit the owner of the mortgaged land to intervene in the foreclosure suit, upon proper pleas and sufficient proof, disclosing that he had good reasons for not appearing earlier, that he was deprived of his title without consideration by means of fraud and that plaintiff is chargeable with knowledge of the fraud and of intervenor's rights.

3. A court of equity may cancel a deed procured from the owner of the land without consideration by means of fraud and may also cancel a mortgage given to secure a debt owing by a subsequent grantee to the mortgagee, if the latter is chargeable with notice of the fraud and of the equitable rights of the person defrauded.

Brown v. Easterday. Appeal, Lancaster. Reversed and dismissed. Opinion by Redick, D. J.

1. An oil and gasoline filling station erected in a residence district is not a nuisance per se.

2. The storage of gasoline in tanks underground, in strict compliance with an ordinance regulating the same is not a nuisance per se.

3. Ordinance examined and held not to require the taking out of a permit to store gasoline when done in the manner prescribed.

4. That the operation of a lawful business will depreciate the value of adjoining property furnishes of itself no ground for injunction, the legal remedy being adequate.

5. The right of an individual to enjoin a public nuisance depends upon his being subjected to an injury, not merely in degree, but in kind, different from that suffered by the general public.

6. Evidence examined and found not to show any special injury to plaintiff warranting equitable relief.

H. J. Hughes Co. v. Farmers Union Produce Co. Appeal, Franklin. Affirmed. Opinion by Redick, district judge.

1. To constitute an association of persons a corporation de facto there must exist some color of a corporate franchise under which they are operating.

2. To constitute such color, some bona fide effort clearly intended as an attempted compliance with some provision of the statute requisite to a corporate franchise, must be shown.

3. The adoption of articles and perfection of an organization in the usual manner, followed by the holding of meetings and transaction of business in a manner appropriate to a corporation, and the existence of a law under which one might have been formed, are insufficient to constitute a corporation de facto, for want of color of franchise, even tho the parties intended to incorporate and believed they had done so.

4. A corporation de facto can not be created by estoppel, the only effect of the estoppel being to prevent the question being raised.

5. Where members of an association are sought to be charged as partners and the answer is a general denial, the defendants may show that they were a corporation, or may show any fact which tends to dispute the facts necessary for plaintiff to prove, without pleading the same specially.

6. In order to let in evidence of an estoppel in pais, the facts constituting the same must be pleaded, such an estoppel can not be shown under a general denial.

[illegible] v. Harlan County. Appeal, Harlan. Affirmed. Opinion by Redick, district judge.

[illegible] ... the county for the benefit of a township, the county is not liable therefor.

In re Claim of Cronk. State v. Farmers bank of Page. Appeal, Holt. Affirmed. Opinion by Dean, J.

1. A customer paid to a state bank approximately $650 with which the bank was to obtain a liberty bond and war savings stamps of the face value of $500 and $150 respectively. Subsequently the bank failed and in the usual court proceedings which followed it was shown that four liberty bonds in the denomination of $100 each had been received by the bank before it failed but no bond and no war savings stamps were ever delivered to the customer. By leave of court the customer intervened and filed a claim for $650 praying that it be allowed out of the depositor's guarantee fund. Held, that the intervenor was not a depositor within the meaning of the depositor's guarantee act and also, held, that the court did not err in denying claimant's right to have his claim paid from the fund in question.

2. Ordinarily a general deposit consists of money which is mingled with other money of a bank, the entire amount forming a single fund from which depositor's are paid.

State ex rel Funke v. Lancaster county. Original Mandamus. Writ denied. Opinion per Curiam. Dean, J. dissenting separately.

1. The word "proportion" as used in the second paragraph of section 2625, Comp. St. 1922, means or signifies part, or portion.

2. Mandamus is not a proper remedy to obtain redress from errors in making assessments for special benefits by a board of equalization, when the statute affords an adequate legal remedy.

Talsich v. State. Error, Douglas. Reversed and remanded. Opinion by Colby, district judge.

1. Section 9533, Comp. St. 1922, defines several distinct independent offenses of equal rank, no one of which is embraced within the other.

2. Under an information charging defendant with shooting with intent to kill, it is error to instruct the jury that this offence includes the lesser offense of shooting with intent to wound or of assaulting with intent to inflict a great bodily injury.

3. Under an information charging defendant with shooting another person with intent to kill, such defendant cannot be convicted of an assault with intent to inflict a great bodily harm.

Hopperton v. State. Error, Dawes. Affirmed. Opinion by Letton, J.

1. A motion for a new trial in the district court on the ground of newly discovered evidence was properly overruled when the testimony set forth was merely cumulative and corroborative of other testimony, and its reception would not be likely to change the result.

2. In order to present for review an assignment of error that the court refused to instruct upon one or more propositions of law, it is essential that if the request was made orally the page of the record at which the request is shown be pointed out in the brief. Unless the instruction refused concerns such an essential part of the issues that it would constitute prejudicial error to fail to instruct upon the point. "The better rule is that suitable instructions be prepared and submitted to the court, thereby obtaining a ruling thereon, which, if adverse, would constitute a foundation for review," Curtis v. State, 97 Nebraska 397.

3. In order to preserve for review the alleged error that a tobacco cutter with which it was alleged that the assault was committed, but which after being introduced in evidence was withdrawn as not having been sufficiently identified, was permitted to remain upon a table in the court room in view of the jury during the trial, it is essential that a request should have been made to opposing counsel, or to the trial court to have the same removed from the view of the jury. Where no such request was made, it is too late to present the point to a reviewing court as prejudicing the defendant's rights.

4. Evidence of defendant and witnesses upon his behalf, examined and held to support the verdict.

State ex rel. City of Chadron v. Intermountain Ry. L. & P. Co. Appeal, Dawes. Affirmed. Opinion by Colby, district judge.

1. A writ of mandamus with an ancillary injunction to prevent actual, impending or threatened injury, is a proper remedy to compel the performance of a plain public duty, when there is no adequate remedy at law.

2. A court may compel by mandamus the performance of a public duty assumed by a public service corporation in furnishing electrical current to a municipality and its beneficiaries, when from the franchise contract it appears that such duty is plain and unequivocal.

3. The payment of a surcharge of 33 1-3 per cent, in addition to the maximum contract rate by the city of Chadron and its inhabitants under threat of shutting off the electrical current, unless the increased rate is paid, will not be construed as a consent to such increased rate or a change of the contract between said city and the public service corporation.

Brandeen v. Beale. Appeal, Lancaster. Reversed and remanded. Opinion by Blackledge, district judge.

A proceeding in county court for the appointment of a guardian for the person and estate of an alleged incompetent person, which is based upon a petition by a creditor and not by any relatives or friends of the alleged incompetent, as prescribed by statute (Comp. St. 1922, Sec. 1589) and in which the alleged incompetent did not appear and was not represented by guardian ad litem or otherwise and none of the relatives or friends were notified or appeared and in which there is no finding that the individual was mentally incompetent to have the charge and management of his property, is void and subject to collateral attack.

Brown Real Estate Co. v. Lancaster. Appeal, Lancaster. Affirmed. Opinion by Letton, J.

1. The provision in section 2627 Comp. St. 1922, relating to special assessments, that the county board shall by resolution "fix and determine and levy the assessment upon each lot, tract and parcel of land, or portion thereof, in proportion to the net benefits derived by each by reason of such improvements," construed, and held to mean, in proportion to such benefits, but not in excess of the special benefits derived from the improvements by each lot or tract.

2. The language of section 2627 Comp. St. 1922, as to the assessment of benefits and the provisions of section 6, article x, of the constitution of Nebraska, by implication limit the amount of assessment for local improvements to the special benefits severally accruing to the lots or parcels of land thereby affected.

Hibberd v. Hughey. Appeal, Buffalo. Affirmed. Opinion by Redick, district judge.

1. Mere disobedience by the servant of the master's order regarding the manner in which work is to be performed will not operate to remove the servant from the sphere of his duties.

2. Disobedience of a positive order as to the place where work is to be performed resulting in injury to the servant arising out of the place selected by him constitutes a departure from his employment, and such injury cannot be said to "arise out of and in the course of" his employment within the meaning of the employers liability law.

3. Evidence examined and held to support the finding of the district court.

Lady Luck.

"A wise man doesn't overdo," said the porter. "Now you work too hard; that's why you're warm."

"Sometimes, Bill," said the office humorist, whose principal occupation for the last hour had been the wielding of a fan, with frequent trips to the water cooler. "I think you're deep."

"I thought I was deep, too," said the porter, "until last night. I've got a friend named Brown. He's a good pal of mine. I've borrowed money from him and he's borrowed from me, so you can see we think a heap of one another. Brown got a new job the other day at a fashionable shop down Michigan boulevard, one of those places where a man in uniform stands out in front and helps the customers in and out of their autos, you know. They gave him a swell blue uniform to wear, all gold braid. Honestly, the way he's dressed up he looks like the chief of police. Brown came up to my room last night to show me his glad rags. He certainly looked grand.

"Then I had an idea. I like to join in a little friendly game once in a while back of Pink Sutton's barber shop. I generally win for a while, and then things take a turn for the worse and pretty soon I'm cleaned out.

"I was going to try my luck at Pink's place last night so I asked Brown to drop around at 10 o'clock and peek in at the winder. If I was ahead I'd wear my hat on the back of my head, and he was to just walk in without a word, wearing that new uniform. If I had my hat tilted over my nose it meant I was losing and he was to wait. Brown said yes, he would, so pretty soon I went down to Pink's place, with my last week's salary in my pocket.

"Old Lady Luck was strong for me from the first. By 10 o'clock I was away ahead. I stuck my hat on the back of my head and waited for Mr. Brown. I knew that when he came in the other guys would think the joint was bein' raided and would run for cover, giving me a chance to beat it with my winnings. Blue uniforms sure makes 'em jump!

"Well," continued the porter, "sure enough when the gang in that gambling parlor saw the blue uniform they beat it like rabbits, leaving me alone at the table with a grin on my face."

"I told you you were deep," said the office humorist.

"Not so deep," replied the porter, sadly, picking up his mop and getting back to work. "Man, it took all my winnings and my salary beside to pay the fine the judge gave me for gambling; you see, that was a real policeman after all. My friend Brown, he arrived just in time to see me get a free ride in the patrol. If he had been there a little sooner the scheme would have worked out all right."—Chicago Daily News.

POTATO HILL PHILOSOPHY.

Life is so simple, and so easily understood, that the great marvel to me is that so many believe it is a mystery.

The statesmen are again talking about Our Problems. I do not know much about them, except that they cannot be solved.

When I use the word Art, I mainly mean music, painting, sculpture, architecture. When these inspire a sermon, I supply the words out of my own mind and experiences. When I hear a great musical performance, I do not wish a fellow to interrupt me by telling what it means; nor do I care for the guide who reels off parrot talk in an art gallery. I thank no poet for putting my sentimentalism into words; I am capable of supplying my own.

There is a type of coy old girl who, when I shake hands with her, pulls away quickly, as tho I am a bold wretch holding her hand too long. For thousands of years some of the men have been guilty of mean acts toward women. Thus suspicion of men becomes heredity with women: they are as suspicious of men as all the French of a thousand years hence will be of a few Germans guilty of particular atrocities in 1915. So it comes about that women make some charges against me I'm not guilty of: some things they think I am liable to do, I am not liable to do. Only a few dogs kill sheep, but all dogs look alike to sheep.

There was formerly a law against vagrancy. If a man did nothing, the town marshal arrested him, and put him on the rock pile. Such a law now, properly enforced, would get rid of much of the thieving going on. When a house is occupied by people the neighbors know nothing about, let the town marshal call, and get particulars. The other day the police raided a certain house, and recovered thirty thousand dollars stolen in a raid on a bank. The house was occupied by two men who had no legitimate means of support, and two abandoned women. The neighbors had long been suspicious of the place. Those people should have been arrested for vagrancy long before they had opportunity to rob a bank. Do you not know hundreds of people who have no visible means of support? The thieves cannot always be located by the police, but vagrants can.

The other day I was walking near the court house, and met three people coming out: a very young man, a very young woman, and an elderly woman evidently the mother of the girl. A human tragedy was displayed in the faces of the three. The young woman had her arm thru the arm of the young man, as tho he was her only hope: as tho she was determined not to let him get away: to keep in sight of him: not because of love, or admiration, but because of some great danger. The face of the young man indicated that he was angry: that he had been compelled to admit some sort of bad conduct. The face of the mother was another study: anger, softened with a sort of pity. As I glanced at the three, I noted that the young girl would soon become a mother. It was a moving, pitiful sight. When I passed the court house, an official came out, and told me he had just married the young couple. The three, as they passed me, were marching to an uncertain future. How sincerely I hoped that the young man might make a success of a bad start; that the girl wife, frightened and disgraced that day, might find final recompense for her trust; that the angry mother might come to love and honor that son-in-law, and receive blessings at his hands in her old age. As long as I live, I shall remember the sight I saw near the court house steps; no tragedy on the stage or in print ever moved me more. And I shall long wonder how they are all getting along, with the sincere hope that they are getting along well. It has been done: I hope that young fellow will overcome his handicap.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

A Surplus of $300,000,000.

The end of the fiscal year brings to the treasury a surplus even greater than that which President Harding predicted in his recent survey of the federal finances before the administrative heads of the government at the time of their third budget meeting in Washington. Instead of an estimated surplus of $200,000,000 in the fiscal year ending July 1, the figures of receipts and expenditures for the past twelve months indicate a balance to the good of $309,657,460. The year that has just ended brought into the treasury receipts totalling $4,007,135,480, and the expenditures of treasury funds during the same period amounted to $3,697,478,000. These figures are all the more significant when we bear in mind that not many months ago the treasury experts believed that the treasury would face on July 1 of the present year, a deficit of some six or eight hundred millions.

An increase in treasury receipts, due to a greater general prosperity of the country as a whole, and the application of the budget system to government expenditures, have made possible the substitution of a surplus of $300,000,000 for an estimated deficit of $800,000,000. Custom receipts during the fiscal year just closed reached the record figure of $561,928,466, an increase of 5[?] per cent over the receipts for the fiscal year closing June 30, 1922. Income and profits taxes totaled $1,678,607,425, an increase of nearly $200,000,000 over the estimates made last December by government officials. Other kinds of internal revenue brought into the treasury an added $945,865,222. These increased receipts constitute a fiscal barometer that reflects a rising tide of prosperity throut the country. But prosperity is only one of the elements that has contributed to this result. The record would not be nearly so impressive had not the administration, thru the application of the budget system, and a vigorous policy of retrenchment reduced governmental expenditures below those of the fiscal year ending on June 30, 1922, by more than $200,000,000.

Not less worthy of commendation is the skilful way in which the treasury has handled the problem of the short-term floating debt. Since the beginning of the refunding program announced on April 30, 1921, according to the treasury's statement, approximately "$4,070,000,000 of victory notes have been retired, treasury certificates of indebtedness have been reduced from $2,820,000,000 to about $1,030,000,000, all maturing on quarterly tax payment dates, and war savings securities have been reduced from $713,000,000 to about $90,000,000, while new treasury savings certificates to the amount of about $245,000,000 and about $4,100,000,000 of treasury notes maturing on various quarterly tax payment dates during the years 1924-1977 have been issued and are now outstanding." During the same period we are told the gross public debt has been reduced by about $1,550,000,000, the debt standing on July first at $22,349,707,365. The treasury, in short, has now well in hand the problem of the short-term floating debt, and the reductions already effected in the funded debt foreshadow other and equally marked reductions in the near future in our public debt. The administration may well be proud of the success of its fiscal policies.—Boston Transcript.

What Is Elusive?

Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, who watches over the New Standard dictionary, has been reported to say that "in the modes of language the dictionary must keep pace with Broadway," because, he argues, a dictionary is "the reflection of the common denominator of our speech." Tho we might fear the gifts which the Broadway Danai might bear us in the shape of words and their pronunciation, we are glad that Dr. Vizetelly has called attention to what in such matters the over-conservative seem to disregard.

Words change very much, tho we should not always say that the change was caused by style in the way that style lengthens or shortens the skirts of our coats. Dr. Vizetelly, however, has what we do not possess, the knowledge of an expert, and we simply content ourselves with pointing out how much harder than it seems it is to find the right word to express a conception. So much have we been impressed with this that it has sometimes looked as tho the makers of books of synonyms and cognate works were the egg-dancers of literature. You are given a dozen words, almost, but not quite what you want; and between each of the dozen words there is a hiatus which should be filled by the little combination of letters that shall put you and the reader on good terms. Sometimes this is found, but many times a thought goes imperfectly expressed, limping and halting on the page.

For all those learned and patient who have compiled books of this sort that shall offer colors to the writer's palette, we have nothing but praise and gratitude, but the beginner is deceiving himself if he fancy that he can open a book and presto! find his word, "le mot juste," neat and sufficient as a cartridge. Even literature needs labor. He will do himself good if he read all the words that are offered as synonyms, that cannot be counted for time lost, but when he has gone thru the list he often will find himself thrown back on the true source, the dictionary, the constant, growing repository of the language. Flaubert's agonized searching for the right shade of word would hardly do for the writer that must bustle and produce at the same time, yet the dictionary must be his final refuge and comfort, and so we all of us owe much gratitude to the men and women who spend months and years with thousands of words that we may use one for a second and then forget it.—Boston Transcript.

Mussolini's Bullfight.

Whether like the Caesars he means to wheedle the populace to his will with spectacles and shows, or like Scott and Phillips he means to make them men of blood and iron by giving them strong nourishment, nobody seems to know. But everyone knows at least that Premier Mussolini has lifted the prohibition on bullfights in Italy, writes Stark Young in the New Republic. And this first Sunday in June repeats for Bologna the occasion in Rome when the Spaniards made their debut under Mussolini's patronage and with innumerable cameras directed on them and on him.

The Corrida, as the Italians call it, using the Sapnish term, is in the corso where the famous bicycle races are run. More than five thousand people have come to see it. Men and women and boys, but mostly men: some of them like clowns with the white dust of the road on their faces, hot from nearby cities and towns and country villas.

Within this stadium they have set up a ring that is less than half the size of the area, two wooden fences, one within the other, painted red nad yellow. A trumpet blows. And still, tho the trumpet is stirring, one doubts how the Italians, who are not very kind to animals, will take to this fierce sport; tho people like it in Spain, where everyone loves animals and where there is a proverb that says that the donkey is always the baby in the house, meaning of course that everyone pets him. The leader of the Corrida rides into the ring, followed by the bullfighters, with a stray horse or so and two great dappled horses decked out in streamers. The Spaniards themselves, their walk and their costumes for a moment, in spite of everything, the cramped bull-ring, the lack of horses, the imported quality of the sport, are magnificent. The sindaco throws to the leader the keys of the city tied with ribbons. The trumpet sounds again, the gates are opened and presently a black bull, rather small, comes in. He shakes his horns and looks at these strange enemies. For a moment I am at a loss over the flatness of it all and the cause, then I see that there are no picadors on horseback with lances, no horses are to be killed by the bull. Mussolini has forbidden that part of the bullfight.

Kuhlman owned some land in Nowata county, Okla., in the vicinity of which some oil prospecting was being done. He says that relying upon Hampton, whom he had favorably known for a long time, he gave him a five year oil lease for $40 and that Hampton immediately sold it for $3,500. Hompton says he did nothing of the kind, and that he paid Kuhlman all the lease was worth.

BUNCO GAMES TO BEWARE OF

BY WALTER B. GIBSON.

The Whirling Spindle.

Wherever the patron of the country fair or carnival finds games of chance permitted, he will discover a spindle in operation. Spindles have become extremely popular among the "bunco men," as they are small, compact, easy to carry, and, above all, easily "gaffed" or "faked," so that the unsuspecting person who plays one of them has no possible chance of winning.

Spindles are seen in many varieties; they are played differently and they are "gaffed" in many ways. Certain types once seen on the midway of nearly every fair have now become obsolete and have been discarded by their operators. For there are new inventions in the world of fraud as well as in the realm of science, and a modern spindle has just as many advantages over an old-timer as an electric bull's eye has over an old-fashioned oil lantern.

The spindle described in this article is sometimes termed the "improved spindle," as it represents the latest word in efficiency attained by the makers of "gaffed" spindles. In appearance, the spindle is a heavy wooden arrow, mounted on a wooden base. Protruding from the end of the arrow is an indicator made of stout celluloid. This is just long enough to touch a circle of posts, or pins, which are seen around the axis of the arrow, and which form a circle of numbered sections, alternating odd and even. When the spindle is whirled it spins around rapidly, finally coming to a stop. The celluloid indicator, which has been striking the pins during the rapid revolution, indicates the winning section. The arrow is always spun in the same direction; usually from left to right, and the player may spin it himself. But, strange tho it may seem, he never manages to win any of the valuable prizes which are displayed before his eyes. He is told that if his spin stops on an even number, he will win. But every whirl seems to terminate on an odd section. Then he places his money on the odd numbers, and the arrow invariably comes to rest with the indicator pointing to an even numbered section.

Most unsuccessful players attribute their losses to bad luck. Rarely do they suspect the operator of fraud, for everything seems fair and "on the level." But in the case of the spindle under discussion, and in the cases of many other spindles, luck has nothing whatever to do with it.

The contrivance is a "set spindle"—a term used to designate spindles which may be "set" so that the player will lose. One authority on gambling devices of this sort claims that there are no spindles in operation at fairs, carnivals, etc., over which the operator has not control. In this case the operator certainly does have control, as the explanatory diagrams reveal.

The pins, or posts, forming the circle of numbered sections, are made of twisted wire. To the casual observer these twists are made merely for ornamental purposes; but there lies the fraud. The diagrams give a side view of one of the pins. It will be noticed that the corkscrew effect gives the pin an inward and an outward curve. The celluloid indicator is just long enough to touch one of the inward points of the pin.

In setting up the pins they are arranged alternately, so that each pin controlling an even section has its inward curve where the odd section pins have outward curves. Accordingly, when the spindle is whirled, the celluloid indicator does not touch the pins controlling the odd-numbered sections. The end of the indicator barely passes by them, so it is bound to terminate at an even-numbered section.

The post on which the arrow spins may be slightly raised (as indicated in the diagrams), by lifting on a lever which protrudes from the rear of the board on which the spindle is mounted. With a touch of his finger the operator can secretly raise the arrow a fraction of an inch. This causes the indicator to connect with the inward curves of the odd-numbered sections, and to miss the even numbers entirely. Thus, whether the player plays the odds or the evens, the operator can see to it that no prize will be forthcoming.

Instead of raising the entire wooden arrow by the concealed lever, some spindles have an inner post at the axis of the arrow. This post is connected to the celluloid indicator, which is not set in the tip of the arrow, but runs to the axis just underneath the arrow and whirls with the arrow. By raising or lowering the lever the operator controls the indicator, and there is no actual raising of the arrow itself.

FLAPPERS PARADE AT CAPITAL BEACH

Annual Pepper Pot Revue Featured at Barbers' Picnic Friday Night—To Be Shown in Movies.

The flappers parade, annual attraction at the barbers' picnic, will begin at Capitol Beach Friday evening at 6:30 p. m. All girls having bobbed hair will be admitted to the beach and all its concessions free of charge. The flappers will be divided into three classes, red bobs, bobs over fourteen years of age and bobs under fourteen years of age. In addition to these three classes there will be the famous sweepstake class for which any bob is eligible.

The management has made arrangements to have a movie camera on the ground to make photographs of the modern maids. Led by the Hussar band the parade will make a circuit of the grounds and march into the parking enclosure at the east end of the midway, where the judges will place red, white and blue leis over the abbreviated tresses of the 'runners up' in the contest.

The band followed by the 'runners up' and the other bobs will then march to the open air theatre, where the judges will make their final choice. The winners' leis of red, white and blue will be exchanged for ones of solid blue, and the prizes awarded from the platform.

"Little Corporal" on Horseback Invades Former Home of Austrian Royalty.

VIENNA, July 20.—Napoleon—riding his white charger, heading his columns of victorious troops—has again invaded Schoenbrunn suburban residence of the Hapsburgs.

As the "Little Corporal" entered the great open yard through the gates which once before his fiery steed (Napoleon always rode a fiery steed) carried him in triumph before a royal assemblage, a movie camera clicked, directors waved their arms wildly and re-captured the conqueror what to do, how to do it and when.

the ability of the property to pay out in due time.

Many of the foreclosures are the result of land speculation in 1920, and are not traceable to the depression in farm prices directly. In a number of cases men who had sold their holdings invested in other land relying on the payments for what they had sold to take care of those on what they had bought. The failure of the purchasers of his own land to make good have put in him in a financial situation where in a number of cases bankruptcy them.

CHICAGO BUYS WHEAT TO CHECK THE SLUMP

Grain Men Are Forming Groups to Buy Thousand Bushel Lots in Effort to Stabilize Prices.

CHICAGO, July 20.—The "buy one thousand wheat" campaign has been formally started in a number of the leading grain markets. The Tribune says: Those heading the movement in Chicago are expected to meet today to perfect plans. Omaha grain men met yesterday, and chamber of of commerce started their chain plan by buying. Groups of ten are to be formed to buy 1,000 bushels, and each member is to form another group to buy 1,000 bushels. Buying of wheat on the 1,000 bushels order plan was increased in Chicago yesterday and with the help of general buying by the northwest and eastern speculators, prices were lifted above the $1 level for all deliveries.

Advance in prices on Wednesday was taken advantage of by many farmers to sell their new wheat, while others looked for a further upturn and held back. This was especially the case in the southwest, where prices are the lowest, 75 to 80 cents per bushel.

View of local grain men are strongly in favor of the campaign. L. F. Gates says: "The campaign to stimulate investment buying of wheat in small quantities seems not only reasonable but feasible. The withdrawal of large speculative support during the past three months has been generally attributed to the supreme court's decision relating to what is commonly known as the Capper-Tincher act, or the grain futures act. Commission houses have not been able to rally enough support. The grain trade generally favors a higher level for wheat prices and will be glad to assist in this movement."

Joseph Griffin said: "The grain trade, in common with business in general, would welcome an advance in the price of the principal farm products. Measured in dollars, the wheat crop is not as important as many other crops. However, it possesses a psychological influence, being considered generally as the basic commodity of the world."

FOLLIES GIRL WEDS EARL

Jessica Brown Becomes Countess of Northesk, With Four Houses and a Castle.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Jessica Brown, who used to be third from the end in the first row of the Follies, is today the eleventh countess of Northesk, mistress of four English town and country homes and Ethie castle, said to be haunted.

Miss Brown and David Ludovic George Hopstoun Carnegie, the earl, were married here last night in the office of Frank T. Gordan, an attorney. They were recently denied a license in New York because of technicalities over the bride's divorce from her first husband.

The earl appeared personally at the county building for the marriage license and showed signs of withdrawing from the office when a crowd surged about him, but he completed the purchase of the slip of paper when assured a wedding in America is a "public matter."

The ceremony was witnessed by the countess' mother, Mrs. A. W. Stark, half a dozen law clerks and numerous reporters.

No well informed person at all familiar with local conditionsand the need for conservatism in placing loans would advise that they be made without due care being taken and that adequate security be furnished; but I know of some of the best farms under the best management where there is no question but that the farmer would work out the loan and that the loan itself would be a real boon, if made. This ruling absolutely prevents the use of money from the land bank for such purposes.

BRITISH NOTE AT DEADLOCK

CABINET CAN'T AGREE ON WHAT TO SAY ON REPARATIONS.

Pressure Brought on Premier to Avoid Break With France and Keep a Firm Attitude Toward Germany.

LONDON, July 20.—The British cabinet, even, proved unable to agree upon the terms of the reparations note that is to be sent to Germany, and further consideration was under way today, while the allies and the late enemy waited.

Discussion of the draft of the note and its covering letter, which was to have been sent to France, Belgium, Italy and the United States last night, was resumed at 10 Downing street, where the cabinet met with Premier Baldwin.

It is expected that the documents will be ready to be handed to representatives of the allies here tonight.

Two factors are understood to have delayed unanimous cabinet agreement upon the note, which is Britain's answer to the latest German offer and an important announcement of Britain's policy toward the whole question of reparations as well.

Germany is understood to have interposed certain suggestions.

The "die hards," whose one anxiety is that there shall be no break with France, are understood to have been bringing pressure to bear upon Premier Baldwin from quite the opposite quarter. They seek to prevent the premier from criticizing France's Ruhr venture and from adopting too lenient an attitude toward Germany.

It is suggested that delivery of the note will be followed by general pourparlers between allied premiers and foreign secretaries.

IRON MOUNTAIN COMES BACK

Missouri Boom Town Takes New Lease of Life as Mine Operations Begin.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mo., July 20.—Iron Mountain is "beating back" again to prosperity. Thirty-three years ago one of the greatest industries at that time in southeast Missouri closed down. Piece by piece the factories were dismantled, one by one the thousands of people who had been employed left this place, and after a few years the large buildings that had been constructed for the industry, for homes and for store buildings, stood only as grim monuments of the once prosperous days at Iron Mountain. Few of the old structures remain.

Since the closing of the Iron Mountain mines in 1890, they have passed thru a number of hands, each purchaser making a gamble and generally losing heavily.

However, about four months ago Leonard A. Busby, an attorney of Chicago, purchased the mine. The old Iron Mountain company sold the mines in 1893 for $100,000, thinking the iron deposits exhausted. Busby, when he purchased the mine, did not consider the mine worth anything, but was looking to the 15,000 acres of stock land. Since that time mining engineers have thoroly investigated the mine and found that it contains untold wealth.

With the reopening of this mine, the town of Iron Mountain is gradually growing back. Hundreds of people are moving here and securing employment in the old iron mine, where their fathers and grandfathers once worked. New homes are being put up almost over night. The old mine has been replaced by a standard underground railroad, and a steel tipple shaft 329 feet high has been erected. The massive stone dam on Indian creek which furnished water for the concern years ago, is still doing duty.

TO DISBAR MAGEE COUNSEL

New Mexico Bar Displeased by Public Defense of Editor Convicted of Libel.

LAS VEGAS, N. M., July 20.—Richard H. Hanna, counsel for Carl C. Magee, Albuquerque editor, convicted of libel for editorial utterances, came before Judge David J. Leahy today to defend himself against proceedings desinged to suspend him from practice in San Miguel county.

The attorney has already been found guilty of direct contempt of court in connection with his defense of Magee and awaits sentence. The prosection, it was understood, will seek complete disbarment of Hanna because he spoke from a public platform in defense of Magee during the libel cases.

BUS CRASHES INTO TROLLEY

Twenty-five Passengers Hurt, None Seriously, in New York Collision.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Twenty-five persons were injured, none seriously, when a heavily laden municipal bus crashed into a trolley car today.

Scenes of confusion folowed the smash-up, as men, women and children fought to escape from the wrecked vehicles, and hundreds of others in the neighborhood pushed in to get a view of the trouble.

The bus was hurled on its side and breaking glass showered its passengers as they were piled into a struggling heap.

Four thousand Cape Bremen coal miners voted to continue their strike in defiance of the order of John L. Lewis, international president of the united mine workes, canceling the Sydney charter and ordering the men to work.

NEAR END OF ALASKA TRIP

HARDING WILL MAKE LAST STOP AT SITKA.

Strenuous Journey for Study of the Northland Nearly Completed—August Will Be Spent on Coast.

WITH PRESIDENT HARDING, ENROUTE TO CORDOVA, Alaska, July 20.—One month from the day he set out from Washington, President Harding today was making his last stop in Alaska and thus had very nearly completed the study of the northland which actuated the trip.

Leaving Valdez last night the transport Henderson stopped at Cordova today, where the Copper river section will be visited and then the transport will proceed to Sitka for the last stop before Vancouver.

It has been one of the most strenuous trips any chief executive ever attempted, for in spite of considerable periods of inactivity on the boat, most of the time has been filled up with stops, conferences, sight seeing tours and similar activities.

The party faces another month of equally strenuous activity in the trip down the Pacific coast during which several important speeches will be delivered and then the tour will be concluded thru the canal, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands before the return to Washington, is made via New York.

Mr. Harding probably will sum up the whole trip in a speech in New York on August 28.

The president drove forty-five miles out on a mountain trial during his Valdez stop and viewed the glaciers.

The Rhine metal works at Duesseldorf were occupied by the French troops.

The presentation of evidence in the Pittsburgh plus' case was completed.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, July 20.—Grain prices weakened near the close and finished at the day's low levels on the Chicago board of trade today.

Failure of the Liverpool market to follow advancing wheat prices in this country was given as the chief cause of the abrupt downturn. Prices had been registering good gains thruout the morning, but when it was learned only 200,000 bushels of wheat had been worked for export overnight and the Liverpool market closed weak, recent buyers turned to selling sides and prices slumped quickly. Wheat was the leader in the trade thruout the day's session. Crop news was varied.

July corn made good gains in the morning and held nearly steady on the late downturn, but the deferred deliveries slumped off in line with the wheat pit. Trading was mostly by local dealers.

Oats trading was dull thruout. July deliveries held up in the late selling and closed fractionally above opening levels, but as in corn the more deferred deliveries weakened.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Grain prices opened lower on the Chicago board of trade today. Denials that rust had any effect on wheat in the northwest sprinkled in from numerous sources overnight and the trade was taking a bearish attitude again today on the outlook in both the American and Canadian northwest. Receipts, 285 cars.

Corn prices were fractionally lower. Receipts were 130 cars.

Oats started fully steady, but the decline in wheat soon proved too much and oats prices slumped off quietly. Receipts were 15 cars.

Provisions opened lower.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Action of the wheat market suggests that it would take little good news and a steadiness of values for a few days to bring about a stronger bullish sentiment and more buying. This, it is believed, would carry prices higher.

Reversal of the operations of largest commission and cash houses who sold wheat freely early, surprised the trade and brought in more buying prices. Buying orders came from the northwest and Winnipeg.

For the first time in more than a week the trade paid more attention to black rust reports from the northwest and Canada. They came from the best people in the trade and being accompanied by buying orders counted.

Export sales of wheat in all positions were estimated at 400,000 to 500,000, altho there were unconfirmed reports of a larger business. July loading at New Orleans was reported to have sold at 11 cents over and the basis at the gulf generally, was firmer with light country offerings.

Chicago handlers sold 10,000 bushels wheat; 1150,000 corn; 90,000 oats and 5,000 bushels barley to the domestic trade.

Holders of July corn who have ignored all bearish news and operations of late were more disposed to take profits on the bulge. Their selling was a factor at times. The price is high and shorts show more uneasiness. There have been 390,000 bushels contract corn reported out of condition in elevators so far. The reduced stocks to a point where shorts are in an uncomfortable position and concerted buying might carry prices sharply upward.

Basis on cash corn dropped 1-4@3-4 cents due to large arrivals and a slowing up in the demand.

Iowa reports confirm recent claims of damage to oats by hot weather and so far there has been very little new grain bought to arrive, in any section.—Lamson Bros. & Co.

Housman's Stock Letter.

NEW YORK, July 20.—After several of half-way belief traders yesterday definitely made up their minds to the fact that speculative sellers could expect no further help from liquidation therefore became relatively aggressive in bidding for stocks. The criticism is made that there is no outside buying interest but in a market like the present no one could expect that a recovery in prices could start from without and this lack of so-caled interest we do not believe to be an obstacle in the way of further recoverey. By no means has there been a complete reversal of sentiment. Speculative sellers sold stocks afresh yesterday and the top of the rally and it would appear as if a recovery would be fought to the bitter end. We again do not believe that this indicated the inability of the market to move forward against such resistance, but we do believe that more than before speculative sellers need forced liquidation to establish a profitable business of operations and we cannot see indications of any such enforced liquidation in volume.

A Gross Inaccuracy.

Comments by the United Mine Workers on the subject of depletion are an important feature of their statement to the United States coal commission on anthracite accounting and finance. These comments indicate that the workers' representatives who prepared the statement are not entirely familiar with the subject and that they either do not know the facts or else deliberately misrepresented the situation. They charge, for example, that it is a matter of record that extensive revaluations and appraisals have taken place from time to time in the book values of coal lands and other mine properties for the purpose of boosting depletion rates, and that "a ruling of the federal income tax department, which permitted revaluations as of March, 1913, has greatly stimulated this practice." The "ruling" referred to is not a ruling of the income tax unit, but is the law; and revaluations or appraisals are not fictitious values, but are the ascertainment of actual worth. The ascertainment of values as of March 1, 1913, is required by law, not only in connection with mining properties, but as to all properties—manufacturing, agricultural, timber, railroad, residential, business, or other class of property owned by taxpayers prior to March 1, 1913—on which depreciation or depletion must be computed.

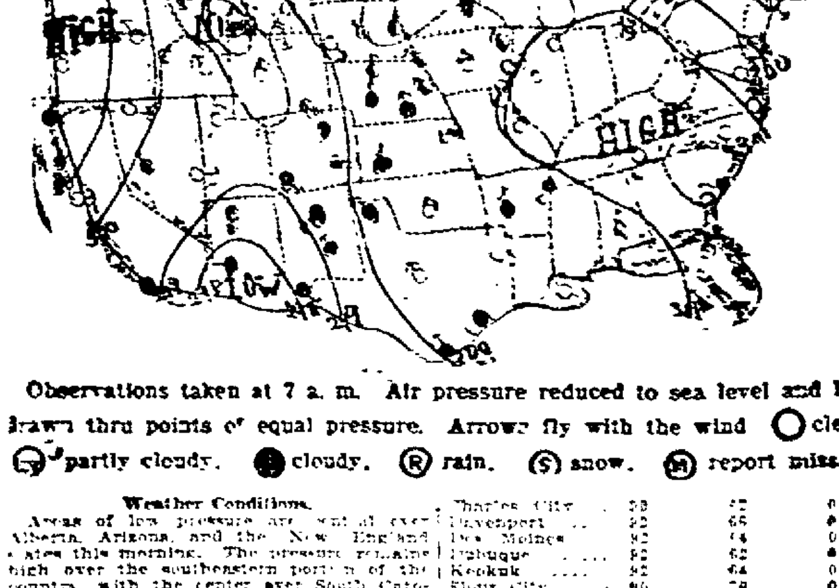

Special reference is made to revaluations on account of "discoveries" which have been "written into the books of the anthracite companies." This undoubtedly has reference to that section of the federal tax law which provides for the allowance of a "discovery value" for depletion purposes in case of a discovery of a mine, or an oil or gas well subsequent to March 1, 1913. It is sufficient to say that there is not known to be a single instance where the income tax unit has allowed discovery value in the case of a coal mine, either anthracite or bituminous.

The allowance of depletion based on discovery value simply places the discoverer, who risks time, skill and fortune in searching for new mineral, oil and gas deposits, on a par with the producer who has some other basis of valuation for depletion under the income tax law; but it has not affected producers of coal since no new deposits of coal have been discovered during the period to which the provision for discovery applies.

It may be contended that the discovery of conditions which increase or decrease tonnage estimates and which may be considered in making a revaluation or appraisal, is what is referred to by the mine workers' representatives, in which case the effect as a general rule would be either to increase the life of the mine and lower the annual depletion rate or decrease the life of the mine and increase the annual depletion rate; but in either event the value of the investment to be returned thru depletion would be the same.

Correct estimation of the March 1, 1913, value for depletion, according to law, is merely the ascertainment of what price the property would bring if offered by a willing seller to a willing purchaser for cash. It is not a value which can be inflated at will, but is a fixed amount; and when this value is exhausted, the depletion deduction ceases. No matter how many revaluations may be made and no matter how many times tonnage estimates may be revised, the value to be returned ultimately thru depletion or depreciation is the value determined and established by the income tax unit as the value existing on March 1, 1913. congress merely allowed the mines the same basic date of valuation that applies to all other classes of taxpayers; and that congress, in recognizing the principle of depletion of wasting assets, gave no unfair advantage to mining enterprises, but provided for the mines a deduction representing the return of the value of investment similar to that provided in the form of depreciation and obsolescence to manufacturers, railroads, public utilities, and other classes of taxpayers, industries and enterprises. The inaccuracy of the statements of the United Mine Workers regarding coal valuations and depletion is so patent that further analysis is unnecessary.—Mining Congress Journal.

THE AFTERNOON GAME

UNCOMMON SENSE.

By John Blake.

Two Men Who Found Out.

Thirty years ago two young men were clerking in a New York department store.

One sold shirts and collars. Another sold silk.

At night they took their dinner in a little cheap restaurant and talked.

Like all healthy-minded boys they talked about football and politics and probably about prize fights.

But they also talked about their work.

"Who makes those shirts and collars you peddle over the counter?" inquired one of them.

"I don't know who makes all of them," replied the other, "but I am going to find out. I'll tell you in about a week. Where does the silk come from that you sell?"

"All I know yet is that it comes from wholesale houses, and some of it is called China silk and some of it is made here in New York. But I'm going to find out."

"Does our concern own or rent its building?" was the next question.

"It rents it now," was the reply. "I don't know how much it pays, but I'll find out about that by and by; also whether it would be cheaper to borrow money and build a store. How much insurance does a big shop like ours have to carry and how much does it cost?"

"I'll find out about that when I get a chance."

"Are there any better methods of displaying goods than we have?"

"I think so. I've been around other stores to find out. I've got some ideas about it already."

"How about floor space? I noticed your department is pretty crowded. Wouldn't there be some way of cutting down departments where there isn't much trade and making a little more room?"

"I've been thinking there would. I'll find out."

Gradually the young men found out the answers to the questions they asked each other and to many other questions.

By and by it became known about the store that they were well informed not only about their own departments but the business generally.

Opportunitise for promotion came and were used.

Slowly they rose, learning as they went, asking innumerable questions, and frequently being told that what they asked was none of their business.

But they kept on finding out.

One of the very important things they found out was that capital was necessary in business, but that capital might consist of knowledge as well as of money.

With that information in mind they saved all they could—which was more and more as their salaries increased.

Soon they had gone as far as they could in that particular business.

But another concern whish was looking for brains took them in, giving them a small share of the profits to start.

For the last ten years they have been in partnership, owning one of the biggest silk businesses in America. And they are still finding out.

THE JARR FAMILY.

By Roy L. McCardell.

"Say, dear, don't you remember that red-headed young man with the scar on his cheek that we met—let me see—where was it that we met him?" asked Mrs. Jarr.

Mr. Jarr put his paper down and listened patiently.

"It couldn't have been at Atlantic Highlands, because the summer we were there our little Emma got the measles and I never got anywhere or saw a soul, except the people that we rented the rooms from. But otherwise it was a very pleasant summer, only you never did get down 'till the late boat, altho a lot of men came down on the 3 o'clock boat; but then they had some love for their families and an eagerness to see them.

"Don't you remember the stout man who wore the 'Protection to the Home' fraternal society emblem, who wouldn't speak to his wife except to snap her head off? Well, he always came down on the 3 o'clock boat and his wife used to say she wished he wouldn't come at all. So it wasn't there, and I don't think it was in the Catskills."

"No, I don't think it was in the Catskills, either," said Mr. Jarr, who hadn't the remotest idea what she was talking about.

"That was before the Chinese game, Mah-Jongg, became all the rage at summer resorts, and I think it's an awful puzzle, but the best way is to just play ahead; for the chances are the others do not know anything more about the game than you do; and if you play whist, a lot of those old crank card players glare at you when you make the least mistake and won't let you take a card back when you've played the wrong one. Well it serves them right!

"Still in those days there were so many people out on Long Island during the summer who used to be crazy about playing progressive euchre, even if they were church members; and certainly you must remember that thin Thornleigh girl that hated her married sister so, and when she could, for she always took charge of the games, she'd punch other people's cards so her sister couldn't win a prize. That's why I know it wasn't out on Long Island, either; and it couldn't have been there."

"May I bid you pause a moment, woman," said Mr. Jarr, calm, but insistent, "and tell me what you are talking about?"

"I asked you a simple question," said Mrs. Jarr sharply. "I asked you if you remembered that tall young man with the red hair and the scar on his cheek whom we met some years ago?"

"Was the scar and the red hair both on his cheek?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"No, it wasn't," replied Mrs. Jarr. "But he's the same young man who got you to cash a bad check."

"Oh, now I remember him," said Mr. Jarr. "But we didn't meet him at a summer resort. It was on an excursion of our lodge to Niagara Falls."

"Well, I knew it was something like that," said Mrs. Jarr. "I saw a young man at Mrs. Stryver's today, who applied for a position as chauffeur and he just looked like him, only, his hair wasn't red and he didn't have the scar and wasn't quite so tall."

"Ah, it's a small world, after all," said Mr. Jarr, taking up his paper, and Mrs. Jarr was mollified.

To sharpen dull files, lay them in diluted sulphuric acid until they are eaten deeply enough.

His Foolishness.

"Confound that fellow, Pumpelly!" snarled Gideon Gadgrind. "I'll never take him motoring again. This afternoon I took him for a spin in my new Riproarer, and he actually said that as near as he could gather there were several other cars almost as good as mine!"—Kansas City Star.

He Works for Fifty-four Nations.

Albert Thomas, minister of Munitions in France during the war, is director of the international labor office. He is the first individual in all the world who was ever simultaneously the servant of fifty-four nations. Even the league of nations does not represent so many countries because the international labor office has some members, notably Germany, who are not yet in the league.

Mr. Thomas, who is Rooseveltian in his energy, and Lloyd Georgian in his insistence upon discussion, has a peculiar theory as to his province as director, and peculiar methods of obtaining results. He believes in personal contact. When letters are sent to a certain nation with relation to ratification of conventions and only a deep silence ensues, as is a way with governments, Mr. Thomas gets on the train and goes over to the capital in touch with the various governmental agencies that have to do with this ratification. He imbues everybody he sees with the enthusiasm which is his dominant quality. He induces officials to dig up his conventions from their files, bring them out into the open, present them to their parliaments for action.

The prominent men in most of the ministries of Europe are his personal friends. He preaches the gospel of international co-operation wherever he goes, smooths out difficulties, clears up misunderstandings. He is a pioneer in this field of international co-operation and pioneers act freely in the face of whatever emergencies may present themselves. He styles himself "the wandering Jew of social politics."

One night, he told me he was to speak in Rome. Quite to his surprise he found that the king was to attend, with members of his court, that the diplomatic colony was turning out "en masse," that it was a most solemn occasion! He talked to that gathering about the possibilities of international co-operation.

The next night he spoke in Milan. Many anarchists crowded into the hall, tried to break up the meeting because, they held, he was a traitor to the working class. There was fighting. Chairs were thrown about. Carabinieri were rushed to the scene to restore order. They encircled the hall, standing with their backs to the wall. To Mr. Thomas this smacked of a reversion to the iron-handed methods of old. He refused to speak in the presence of armed force, and insisted that the military withdraw. This it did, and he again elucidated the same theories he had expounded under quite different circumstances the night before.— William Atherton Du Puy in the Christian Herald.

If Anything.

The St. Joseph Gazette says the only drawback about living at home is if you don't eat it up you have it for the next meal.—Missouri Notes.

"Even so," replies G. R. L., "that is better than boarding at a restaurant and getting what the other fellow leaves."—Kansas City Star.

MEN AND THINGS.

Three accidents within thirty-six hours in Lincoln recently in which one of the parties to each collision was intoxicated or had been drinking serves to call attention to the providential fact that when the saloons came out the automobiles came in. One reason why automobile ownership has increased is that money that formerly went into the saloonkeeper's till is now available for the purchase of this delightful pleasure vehicle. Imagine how unsafe the roads would be, particularly at night, if we had twenty-five saloons in the city busy turning out half-intoxicated men who drove automobiles!

Unless one happens to be particularly active in one of the several channels that city life opens to one to become acquainted, he is lucky if he knows over three or four hundred persons. If he lived in a town of 1,000 he would know half of them. Yet how much more powerful is the attraction of the larger city than is the small town! Where does this attraction lie? In the opportunities for enjoying concerts, theaters, parks, and the like? Certainly it cannot be in the greater social opportunities, because they seem to be non-existent, if we measure it by the number of acquaintances.

David Lawrence raises the question of whether a Catholic can be elected president of the United States. It has not been until recent years that such a matter could even be mentioned in the public press without offense. We have lived long enough, however, to know that unless a member of a church seeks to capitalize this fact in his own interest it cuts very little figure in a political campaign. Al Smith has not done this in hs campagns for governor of New York, and it is not likely to have any particular influence in determining his availability as a candidate for president. Politics has not been lifted to a very high plane, but it is above considering a man's religion as decisive of his ambition.

It is unfair to say of the great number of men who included the Bible in their list of ten greatest books that they did it out of affectation. Every man who assumes to any knowledge of literature has read that great book, and every man who knows anything about literature accords it a high place as a work of literary art. If you wish to test it for yourself take any part of it and try to imagine how any of our great literary artists of today would handle any of the books in the scriptures. Can you imagine even as omnipotent an individual as H. G. Wells making any of them half as readable?

The political writers are manifestly exaggerating the effect of the election of Johnson as senator from Minnesota upon the political fortunes of Senator La-Follette. It will add strength to the movement for fairer treatment for the farmer, insofar as legislation can secure this, but every man who has observed the tactics of radical leaders knows that they are not to be captained by anybody. The very thing that makes them courageous enough to differ from the other leaders of their organization makes it impossible for them to agree to everything any group may seek to lay down.

The evidence of this fact is at hand. LaFollette has only three senators who will work with him. He cannot possibly control men like Norris, Hiram Johnson or Borah, and the political ambitions of the two latter make it impossible for him to look with hope upon their support of his own ambitions. As a political study it is very interesting; but its real effects upon the business of the country will not be important. There will be a lot of noise and excitement, but beyond government assistance to the farmer to hold his wheat for future delivery there is nothing in the program outlined that promises to affect the situation basically.

The hardest job the editors have is to separate news from propaganda. The gentlemen who write or give birth to propaganda have grown so proficient that an editor who desires to be fair dislikes to give only the news and omit the comment upon it. Propaganda is for the benefit of an individual or a cause. Naturally truth is subordinated where it does not tend to secure the effect desired. Appeals to passion and prejudice are characteristic of it, because when you get a man mad his reasoning faculties take a vacation. It is an inseparable companion of politics and the handmaid of the politicians.

It is a fair presumption that many of the automobile collisions are the result of absence of mind for a few brief moments when approaching a car or a crossing. Driving an automobile is no job for a person of a contemplative mind. If you have business or domestic worries leave them at home when you start out in your machine. Most drivers confess to narrow escapes because their minds wandered for a few seconds from the job in hand; the others collided.
